Vote Yes For Farmland

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

When you get right down to it, ag land preservation really is good for everybody. It is good for all the taxpayers because agriculture is Pennsylvania's number one revenue-producing industry of our tax base. It is good for workers because of the multitude of jobs created by agri-business and related manufacturing enterprises. It is good for the naturalist because it provides breeding and living grounds for wildlife and birds. It is good for hunters because farm land provides food and shelter for small game and deer. It is good for vacationers because farm land provides a restful backdrop for a trip anywhere, even to specifically visit the farm land.

It is good for consumers because food grown close to home is fresher and costs less. And of course, it is good for farmers because they can make a living and raise their families around them.

So with all these things going for it, you would think that to keep good agricultural land in production in Pennsylvania would come naturally. But it just isn't that way.

With the competition between growing crops and building houses and highways in many areas of the state, especially in the southeast part of Pennsylvania, the value of land for development has exceeded by two or three times the value for farming.

Workshop Aids In Nutrient Management

BY LOU ANN GOOD

Lancaster — "All farmers have a problem with nutrient run-off," Penn State's Professor of Soil Chemistry Dale Baker said. "But," he told the Nutrient Management Workshop held at the Lancaster County Farm and Home Center on Tuesday, "Farmers don't realize that they have a problem."

In an effort to assist farmers in curbing excessive soil nutrients, Penn State Cooperative Extension Service sponsored the one day workshop, featuring seven of their Penn State College of Agriculture staff.

Water quality problems are affecting the ecological health of the Chesapeake Bay and the county's ground water. Studies show that much of the damage is linked to soil erosion and nutrient overloading from Lancaster County farmland. Over one-half of the manure production happens in the southeastern part of the state.

With slides, charts, graphs and computers, the speakers showed

Karen Baker (center) with the Elizabethtown supreme champion trophy and her family. This trophy comes after the grand champion cow, sheep, hog and steer are brought into the show ring for a panel of four experts to decide which animal represents its species. And this year Karen's prize hog was the judges' selection.

Karen's family surround her. (L to R) Melissa (who had the reserve grand champion hog) Marlin, Nancy and six-year-old Amy who gives a lot of sisterly support.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Live hogs settled higher this afternoon on an active short-covering rally with October through August '88 making new contract highs. Hogs opened higher boosted by higher cash hog openings and light movement yesterday and today. Bellies traded higher on spillover strength from the live hogs, but collapsed near the end of today's session under the weight of sell stop orders and weak wholesale belly prices.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures settled slightly higher today, boosted by late buying tied to an expanding export business. News China was bidding for 270,000 metric tonnes of soft red and 90,000 of hard red for Oct. shipment lifted futures early and sustained gains. Advances also were fueled by hopes that Syria would buy some U.S. wheat when it tenders soon. The September option posted gains of 2-1/4 cents, settling at $2.77-3/4 for the day. December closed at $2.92-1/4 up 2-1/4 cents.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: October live cattle hit a new contract high today at $66.15 on aggressive buying amidst speculation over the Australian import situation. A report that Australian beef supplies in Japan were found to be contaminated with chemical residues furthered speculation that Japan could turn to the U.S. for a large share of its imports. Sharp gains in live cattle generated a sympathy rally in the feeders as October through May '88 made new highs.

Corn That Stands Through The Fall

That corn crop you've labored over won't do you any good if the ears are lying on the ground at harvest time. But Funk's G-Hybrids will stand right through the harvest.

And they'll not only stand, they'll produce record breaking yields. With varieties like G-4027, tops in its field in New York. Or G-4446, a record yielder in Pennsylvania. Or G-4626, a standout in southern PA and Delmarva areas.

And each Funk's variety is backed by Hoffman research We annually run more than 50 test plots to ensure that only the best yielding varieties reach your fields.

When you're looking for outstanding yields this planting season, call your local Hoffman seed representative Or call Hoffman Seeds direct We'll deliver a corn crop that stands through the fall

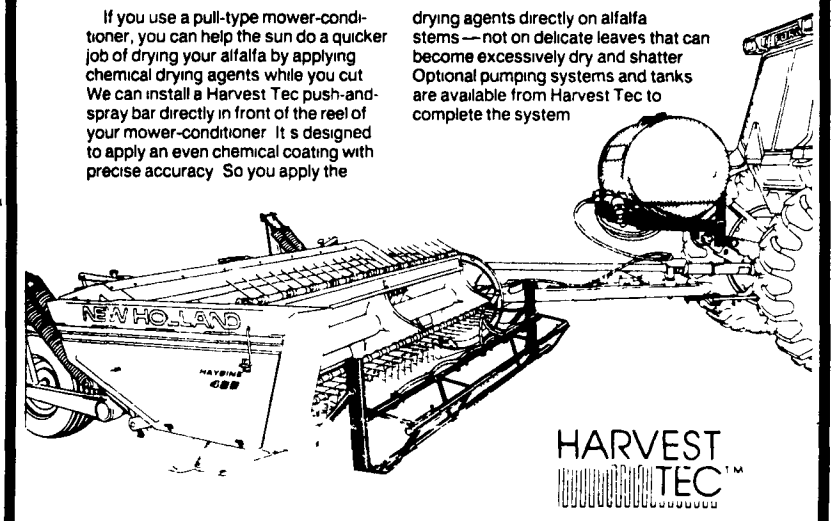
CUT HAY DRYING TIME

RAPID CURE™

If you use a pull-type mower-conditioner, you can help the sun do a quicker job of drying your alfalfa by applying chemical drying agents while you cut We can install a Harvest Tec push-and-spray bar directly in front of the reel of your mower-conditioner It s designed to apply an even chemical coating with precise accuracy So you apply the drying agents directly on alfalfa stems—not on delicate leaves that can become excessively dry and shatter Optional pumping systems and tanks are available from Harvest Tec to complete the system



Chemical Hay Conditioner

When sprayed on alfalfa hay during cutting, the RAPID CURE mixture penetrates the waxy cutin layer on the stems, increasing the rate of water evaporation from the hay.

INTRODUCTORY OFFER $5.00 Per Acre

RAPID CURE:

1. Reduces chance of rain damage
2. Improves the quality of hay
3. Gets hay off faster and allows more days for new hay crop to grow.

RAPID CURE Doesn't Cost...It Pays!!!

Both university and farm tests have proven RAPID CURE Chemical Hay Conditioner pays for itself. RAPID CURE will cost about $5.50 per acre. Applied as directed, RAPID CURE will increase hay yield by 120 to 130 lbs. per acre. This increased yield pays the cost of RAPID CURE.

ABC GROFF, INC. has a quality line of RAPID CURE applicators in stock to fit your needs.

OPINION

Of course, we've heard a lot about this subject. The concept of preserving valuable farm land has been a major discussion in Pennsylvania for nearly 25 years. Much of the fine tuning of the farm land preservation as a public issue came late in the '60s after former Governor Raymond P. Shafer appointed a committee to study the issue. But while all of the states around Pennsylvania initiated programs to provide public funds to pay farm owners for the difference between farm land values and development land prices, Pennsylvania's governors and legislators have generally agreed with the idea but have never provided the funds to accomplish the task.

Now that has changed. The present legislature and Governor Robert Casey have approved legislation to put the issue on the November ballot. The question the voters will be asked to vote upon calls for a one-time $100 million bond issue to fund the purchased development rights program in Pennsylvania.

According to those of us who support the preservation of family farms, this is the most important referendum question in recent agricultural history. That means that now is the time to start working for a yes vote in this important referendum.

Certainly farmers will want to vote yes. But also tax payers, workers, naturalists, hunters, vacationers and consumers will want to vote yes also.

At the rate we are losing farm land in Pennsylvania, we won't have a second chance. In 1965 agriculture utilized all 7.3 million acres. In 1969 Pennsylvania had about 8.9 million acres in farms. In 1978 census of agriculture revealed that the number had fallen to 8.7 million acres. A loss of 2.6 million acres in 13 years. Of course, the trend is not uniform throughout the state. Some areas lost more than others. But the loss cannot be denied.

But now we have a chance to do something about it. Many groups and organizations have taken positive positions on farm land preservation. This is an indication of grassroots support for preserving prime farm land. Every voter in Pennsylvania should be prepared to do whatever is necessary to promote passage of the upcoming referedum at the Tuesday, November 3, general election.

So get prepared to vote yes for farm land. And get your urban and city friends to join you with a yes vote, too.

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Mow or Not To Mow Alfalfa

Each year we receive a lot of calls as to whether alfalfa should be cut the first part of September or not. According to crop authorities it is not just a simple yes or no question. If you have left one of your cuttings go into full bloom, then you do not need to be concerned; however, if you have not, then do not cut the first two weeks of September. The reason for this is, it's the period when the plants are storing food in developing rhizomes for next year's growth. To disturb this development will result in less rhizomes and less growth next year. The final cutting can be made in late September or early October. On stands that have been established this spring, from which one or two cuttings have already been made, it's best to allow it to stand; this will give a little better winter protection.

potash fertilizer this fall is a good practice. Use your soil test results as a guide on rates of application.

To Be Safe During This Busy Season

We are entering one of the busiest and most hazardous times of the year... silo filling and corn picking time. Blend into that time wheat and barley planting and the last cutting of alfalfa. This means a lot of farm machinery will be on our highways during semi-dark or dark hours.

Slow moving vehicles such as farm equipment traveling on highways presents a real traffic hazard. The motorist must recognize that a tractor traveling at 10 to 15 miles per hour is almost standing still compared to a 55 mph car. Most highway drivers have never driven a farm machine on the highway and simply do not realize how slow they do travel.

Proper identification and warning is real important. Let's keep alert this busy fall season both on the highway and in the fields.

To Control Johnsongrass

This sorghum-like grass is a problem on many fields in this part of the state. There are cases where nothing is being done to control this weed; for those I would remind you that Johnsongrass is listed as a noxious weed in Pennsylvania. In corn there is little that can be done at this time of year except cut the seed-head off and burn them. It'll require treatment at planting time.

However, in other fields such as Johnsongrass reaches 2½ to 3 feet... in the boot stage... the plants may be sprayed with Roundup. These plants are very heavy seed producers; a few plants allowed to go to seed this fall will mean hundreds of plants next summer. Johnsongrass is fast growing and will crowd out most farm crops. We urge landowners to make every effort to eliminate Johnsongrass from their farm. The 1987-88 Agronomy guide lists control information.

To Appreciate Lancaster County

While attending the National County Agent's meeting in Fargo, North Dakota last week, we had the opportunity to visit farms in the beautiful Red River Valley area. Their main crops are wheat, sugar beets, potatoes, hay, sunflowers, flax and barley with some corn and soybeans. Yields are less than what we experience because their annual rainfall is only about 17 inches compared to our 42 inches. I was impressed with the rich black soil that ranged in depth from 5 to 60 feet. The country is flat and the rivers run north; that's right, north.

The speakers were very informative and inspirational but the most important part for me is the exchange of ideas and concerns with agricultural agents from all states in the U.S. You really appreciate the many good things that we have at home.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FOR GOD'S SAKE!

August 30, 1987

Background Scripture: Romans 14:1 through 15:13.
Devotional Reading: Romans 14:5-9.

I wish that the 14th chapter of Romans were printed in headline-size type. Starting with the very first verse: "AS FOR THE MAN WHO IS WEAK IN FAITH, WELCOME HIM, BUT NOT FOR DISPUTES OVER OPINIONS." If Paul were taken seriously by a majority of Christians, it might just about ruin church life for many. . .

I'm reminded of the story about an elderly Scotch Presbyterian elder who was visited by his minister. Tiptoeing into the room, the man's nurse informed him that "the Reverend" was there to pray for him. Suddenly the old man's eyes lit up and he raised his head to protest loudly: "I dinna want him to pray for me; I want to argue with him!" And as Paul so clearly predicted, that's what religion is for many people: disputes over opinions that are unfortunately regarded as no less than divine revelations.

WHO IS RIGHT?

Paul was addressing a growing problem in the early church: disputes over Jewish food laws. The Jewish Christians continued to abide by these laws and harshly judged the Gentile Christians who did not. Similarly the Gentile Christian looked down upon the Jewish Christians for their observance of laws that they regarded as sheer Pharasaism.

Who is right? Paul's answer: neither and both. Actually there is no virtue in either observing or breaking these laws except that which the individual imputes to it. As Paul puts it, "I know and am persuaded in the Lord that nothing is unclean in itself; but it is unclean for anyone who thinks it unclean" (14:14). So, both the sin and the virtue are to be found in the mind of the individual, not the act or absence of it.

We find that there are many things that are inherently neither good or bad. Sex, for example, can be either. Money, too. Even atomic energy. The key is the usage to which we put it. Thus one person can eat "in honor of the Lord," while another "abstains in honor of the Lord and gives thanks to God" (14:6).

FREE & OBLIGATED

It would seem, then, that Paul is opening wide the door to doing whatever we want so long as we can do it to the glory of God. But once again Paul strikes a balance between freedom and obligation. One should never use his or her freedom in any way that will cause another person to fall into sin. Paul says: "If your brother is being injured by what you eat, you are no longer walking in love" (14:15). Whereas on the one hand we are free to follow our own conscience wherever it may lead, we are not free to use our freedom in a way that is harmful to someone else.

Paul goes on to say, "For the kingdom of God does not mean food or drink, but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Spirit." And to that statement could be added a long list of other things that the Kingdom of God does not mean: disputes over opinions, personal pettiness and bickering, ego and power trips, and any items over which Christians manage to raise a controversy.

"Do not, for the sake of food (or any of the above) destroy the work of God!" No, for God's sake — and your own — "let us no more pass judgement on one another."

with October through August '88 making new contract highs. Hogs opened higher boosted by higher cash hog openings and light movement yesterday and today. Bellies traded higher on spillover strength from the live hogs, but collapsed near the end of today's session under wholesale belly prices.

ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures settled sharply higher this afternoon with buying initiated by a brighter export outlook. Rumors surfaced early in the session that China and Yugoslavia may be interested in purchasing U.S. corn tonight or Thursday. Prices also were buoyed by a tender from Mexico and possible confirmations from South Korea and Egypt. September posted gains of 3-3/4 cents, settling at $1.61-3/4 and December had gains of 2-3/4 cents, settling at $1.71 for the day.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybeans settled slightly higher, but off daily highs with early support stemming from timely rainfall in the bean belt and prevention of an early harvest. Some support stemmed from talk that CCC might not cut its resale price for beans to $5.15 on Sept. 1, but remain with a higher price. CCC will announce its minimum sales price for 87-88 on Monday. Buying today also came on a more favorable export outlook and the posting of light delivery notices ahead of first notice day Monday. November closed up 2-3/4 at $5.1275.

WILL IT PAY TO HARVEST THE CORN THIS YEAR....?

Predicting corn prices is not an easy task. Regardless of market prices... wouldn't you like to be making more money?

AeroDry Grain Management has developed a system for you to make more money on your crop... regardless of market prices.

The AeroDry system allows you to store and dry your own crop on the farm. You don't pay the elevator for storing or drying - you make their profit.

The AeroDry system uses natural fan forced air, controlled by computer, to dry your corn. There's no high heat to "cook" the quality out of your crop.

The natural air process provides less shrink and higher test weights, while saving up to 75% on energy costs.

Whether you're modifying existing bins or installing completely, AeroDry Grain Management will allow you to sell your crop when you want - without moisture dockage.

Farm proven from the midwest to the east coast - AeroDry is FARM TECHNOLOGY FOR FARM PROFIT.

South-Central 4-Hers Earn Dairy Show Championships

HARRISBURG — The South-Central District 4-H Dairy Show, held Tuesday, August 23, in the Farm Show Building, hosted many familiar names from previous years. However, by the time the final judging was completed previous champions gave way to some new names to the championship line-up.

Denise Martin of Chambersburg in Franklin County took the grand champion title in the Jersey division. Her three-year old, Fortunes Golden Legacy, was sired by Golden Faithful. Tom Arrowsmith of Peach Bottom in Lancaster County, took the reserve champion spot.

In the Holstein division the daughter of Dale-Pride Glendell Monique took the grand champion title. This senior 2-year-old, Dale-Pride Monique Roxie was exhibited by Becky Hostetter of York. Holstein Judge Dennis Patrick from Maryland, selected Hostetter's animal on her tremendously attached udder and on her excellent bone structure. The reserve grand champion this year went to Tom McCauley's 4-year-old Metcalfs Valiant Beauty-ET. McCauleyis from Elizabethtown.

Dauphin County's Debra Shetterly nearly swept the titles in the Ayshire division. Her dry cow senior, Sycamore-meade Lock's Lovely took the grand champion laurels. Judge Patrick chose this dry cow for her beautifully attached udder and for her height and width. Shetterly's senior 2-year'old, Sycamore-Meade Champs Renie took reserve grand champion. Shetterly's intermediate class winner took the junior champion in the Ayshire division. It was Angela Spickler's senior calf in the reserve junior champion spot. Spickler is of Mt. Joy.

This year Janice Garber moved

Dairy Management Column From Delaware

Extension Dairy Specialist

What About Selenium?

Do you have repeat-breeding problems in your dairy herd? Is your average calving interval about 13 months or more? Do you have high somatic cell count problems in your tank milk? Do you have mastitis, metritis and retained placenta problems? Are your calves born weak?

If the answer is yes, you'd best check the selenium status of your cows. Blood samples from a few special cases taken to the Penn State University or some other lab and tested for selenium content should tell you if this is the culprit, because here in Delaware, Pennsylvania, Ohio — indeed, in much of the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic states — the soils are selenium-deficient.

That means plants are deficient, too, and normally you must add selenium to your feeding ration at up to 0.3 parts per million for ruminants.

This is the new FDA allowed maximum limit, and it is three times higher than that allowed originally in 1979. The increase was thought to come closer to the normal selenium content in forages grown on soils with adequate levels.

Continuous feed supplementation with selenium can be justified because it takes only about 3 weeks for animals to become deficient on selenium-deficient diets. The practice helps maintain resistance to infections and keeps all kinds of troubles from starting.

High milk production and longevity in our milking herds — both essential for maximum profits — depend on good health and the ability to resist disease. However, high production imposes considerable stress on our cows and can reduce their ability to respond effectively to disease challenges. How often do you hear dairy farmers say that it's their top cow that got sick again, not the bottom one.

Not only are today's cows bred and fed for higher production, they're also confined to less total space — often with not much pasture at all — and are exposed to more manure, more mud, more concrete floors, more internal parasites and disease organisms.

Pasture grazing has been replaced by silage bunk feeding, but silage fermentation degrades many vitamins in corn and other forages, including vitamin E. High grain feeding has also become necessary for today's high milk production. But without supplements, deficiencies in essential minerals must be expected, especially in selenium. Even in states like Georgia, which have normal selenium levels in their soils, selenium-deficient forages have been identified, because other factors than soil influence selenium content and selenium availability to animals.

Selenium, together with vitamin E, is of critical importance for maintaining the animal immune system and the integrity and function of body cells. Recent research has shown this to be especially true for newborn calves, which had a better growth start when they receive extra vitamin E.

In other studies, cows fed rations low in selenium and vitamin E have developed cystic ovaries, uterine infections and significantly increased incidence of retained placenta. These problems have been corrected by treating dry cows and springing heifers three weeks before calfing with 10cc of a selenium-vitamin E injection, or 5cc at drying-off time and again 3 weeks prior to calving.

Ohio research showed dramatic benefits of up to 41 percent reduction in mastitis, with fewer cases and shorter duration, where selenium and vitamin E were added to the daily dairy ration or given by injections. The improved milk yield and bonus payments for shipments of milk with low bacteria and somatic cell counts increased herd profits, more than making up for the cost of the added vitamin E plus selenium.

The supplementary levels suggested by this Ohio research were 700 mg of vitamin E and 50 mg of selenium at one time, 3 weeks before calving. Or 3 mg of selenium plus 600 units of vitamin E per milking cow per day. For calves, 125 to 250 international units of vitamin E plus 2 mg of selenium gave the best daily growth rates.

Stressed cattle performed better, had less sick days, less mortality and better feed conversions when daily rations were supplemented with 800 international units of vitamin E, plus selenium and also some B-vitamins.

A final word of caution — selenium is readily excreted in milk. More information is needed on the allowable tolerable maximum levels of selenium in milk for human consumption. Unnecessary feeding of selenium to our cows should therefore be avoided.

A Sexation Is Champion At Franklin Show

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG — A 91 point Sexation daughter took home the Senior and Grand Champion awards from the Franklin County Holstein Show held at the Franklin County Fair August 20. Jaye C. Young and J. Chalmers Young, Jr. of JCY Farms, Greencastle, showed JCY Sexation Apex in their first major win at the Franklin County Fair. She also had the second best udder of the show. Apex had taken first place in the five year old class at the South Central District Show August 10. Her best record is 24,000 pounds of milk with 928 of fat in 365 days.

The Premier Exhibitors, James and Nina Burdette of Windy Knoll View Farm, Mercersburg, also showed the Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand Champion, Windy Knoll View Ultimate Pala. The junior two-year-old was named All-Pennsylvania Junior Yearling on 1986. Her dam, Windy Knoll View Creek Pauline is classified 88 with an excellent mammary. Ultimate Pala, a Quality Ultimate daughter, was also named Best Udder of Show.

Youth Senior Champion and Youth Grand Champion was Aldina Legend Jenie, a three year old owned by Beverly A. Meyers, Chambersburg. The 86 point Oak Ridge Legend daughter made 17,250 pounds of milk and 577 pounds of fat in 281 days at 2 years and 3 months.

Beverly's Intermediate Yearling Heifer, Aldina Magic Gigi, was named Youth Reserve Grand Champion and Youth Junior Champion. The Romandale Magic daughter was Youth Junior Champion at the Shippensburg Fair in July, and 1986 All-Pennsylvania and Junior All-Pennsylvania Intermediate Calf in 1986. She was also Junior All-American Intermediate Calf and was nominated All-American Junior Calf.

Reserve Junior Champion was Ro-Meyer Have Faith Dairyman, owned by Stephanie Meyers, St. Thomas. An Arlinda CAR Dairyman daughter, the Junior Two Year old was classified 80 points and projected for 19,000 pounds of milk.

Junior Champion of the Open Show was Windy Knoll View Lotsa Quality, owned by James and Nina Burdette. The Senior Yearling was nominated All-American Senior Calf in 1986 and received Honorable Mention. She is a Quality Ultimate daughter.

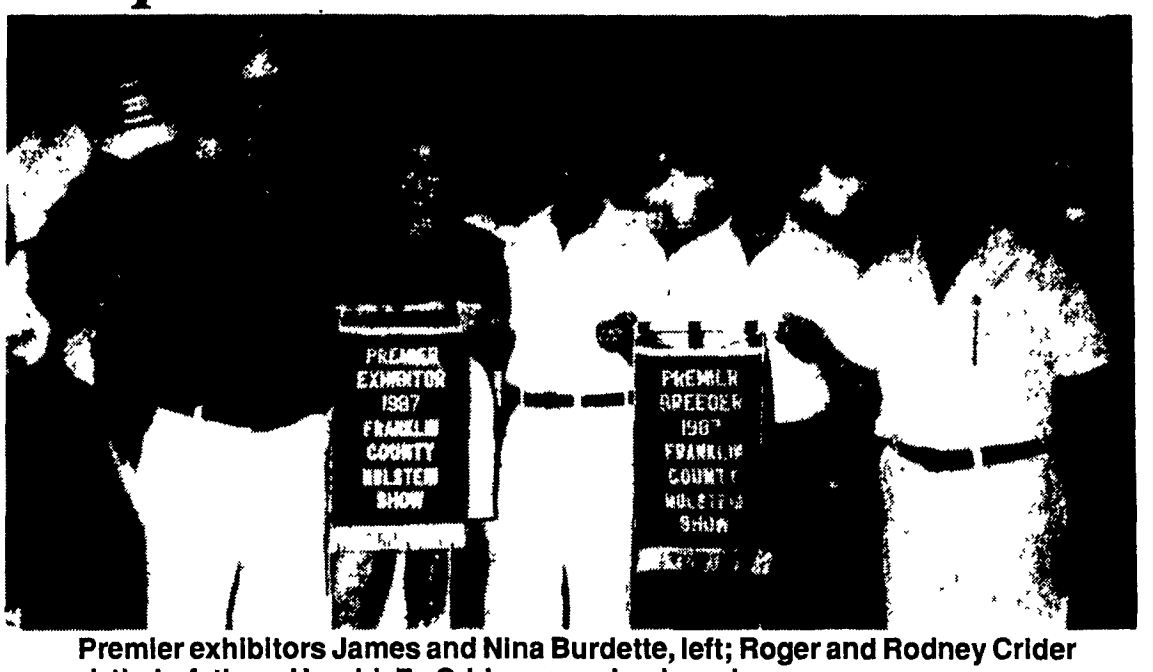
Reserve Junior Champion honors went to Kingstead Merit Amy, an Intermediate Yearling owned by Aldina Holsteins. She is a Kingstead Merit daughter.

Cory Meyers, St. Thomas, showed the Youth Reserve Junior Champion, Ro-Meyer Precious Pride Cory, a Gil-Tex-B Milkmaster daughter. She is a Senior Yearling Heifer.

Antrim-Spring Farms was named Premier Breeder. The farm is owned by Harold F. Crider and sons Rodney and Roger.

Judge for the event was Gordon Wood of Mansfield. He felt that the quality of the cattle shown was excellent. "Several times at the bottom of a class we had cows that would really milk," he said. "There was good quality straight through," he added.

The 1987 Franklin County Holstein Show was dedicated to the memory of Paul D. Eckstine who died August 9 at the age of 72. Eckstine had been in charge of the Holstein Show for the past twelve years and had been a chaperone for the district 4-H show in Harrisburg for fifteen years.



Premier exhibitors James and Nina Burdette, left; Roger and Rodney Crider and their father, Harold F. Crider, premier breeders.

Dairy Board Send Message

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Top editors and broadcasters across the nation recently received a wooden cheese cutting board, complete with a pound of real cheddar cheese, from the National Dairy Board. The mailing was part of the Board's continuing effort to draw attention to the dairy industry and increase media awareness of the National Dairy Board.

The cutting board, emblazoned with the National Dairy Board's logo, whetted the appetites of 200 members of the national media, and encouraged them to include dairy-related stories in their publications and broadcasts.

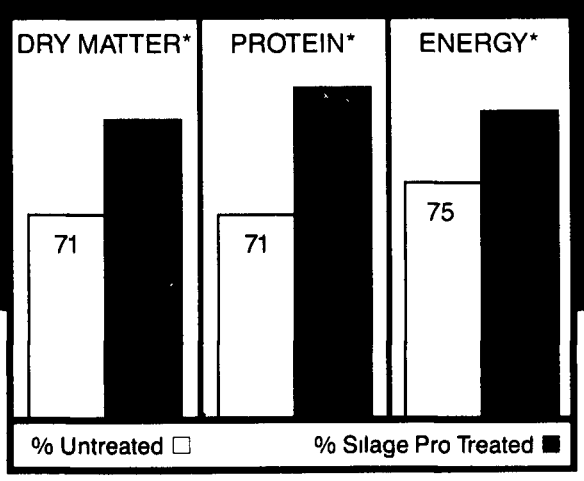
"The cheese board mailling is just one part of our ongoing public relations program to increase our visibility among the national media, and to position us as a source for all kinds of dairy information," says Ron Hamel, Vice President of Public Affairs for the National Dairy Board.

The Dairy Board's efforts to expand news coverage of dairy products and industry issues have generated positive publicity in many areas of the national media.

Recently, morning television personalities Bryant Gumble and Willard Scott delivered the National Dairy Board's message to more than four million viewers across the country, as they announced on NBC's "Today" show that June is Dairy Month and featured a prominent display of cheese on the set.

The "Today" show coverage was a direct result of the National Dairy Board's PR campaign and the cheese board mailing.

Using Silage Pro™ is like harvesting three extra tons for every twenty.



A brief exercise that can increase your profit margin: Write down the volume of silage you put up last year, and how much of that silage you actually were able to use. Now figure out what retaining 15% more silage would have been worth to you.

That much extra silage is exactly what Silage Pro has proven it can provide. Consistently and economically. On farms just like yours.

Here's how Silage Pro preserves forage quantity and quality:

- Enzyme catalysts promote rapid production of lactic acid.
- Lactic acid lowers pH quickly and inhibits the growth of harmful spoilage bacteria
- Because heat is controlled quickly, loss of available protein is minimized.
- Controlled fermentation promotes abundant production of propionic acid, the most effective preservative for haylage and silage. Propionic acid also contributes to greater energy, improved feed efficiency, better animal health and more palatable silage.

Increase the value of your silage. Make Silage Pro part of your crop and feed management program, and get more dry matter, more protein and more energy. Agway guarantees your silage quality will improve

Adding ammonia to corn silage has a long list of desirable benefits not only as a protein source but also improving the silage fermentation.

However, with anhydrous ammonia there are several aspects that are less desirable.

- A hazardous product dangerous to handle.
- It is highly volatile with much atmospheric loss
- It must be handled with special pressurized equipment.
- The rate of retention depends on moisture content of corn silage.
- There is uncertainty in calibration.

There is an alternative ammonia product which seeks to maintain the desirable and improve on the undesirable.

Martin's Hi-Protein liquid silage additive.

McCauley's Dry Beauty Takes Laurels At E-town Fair Dairy Show

BY PAT PURCELL

ELIZABETHTOWN — "It's something we rarely do, but it is no sin to be dry. It is a normal part of the lactation cycle," said Elizabethtown Fair Dairy Show Judge Jim Shaw after naming Tom McCauley's dry 4-year-old as the supreme dairy animal on Thursday afternoon.

Metcalfs Valiant Beauty ET is not producing presently, however, Shaw noted that her dry udder had the characteristics that were unrivaled by any of her competitors. However, when Beauty is producing she is high producer. As a 3-year-old she gave 26,774 pounds of milk with a 3.5 percent fat test at 976 pounds. She is classified as an Excellent 92.

McCauley is the 16-year-old son of Dr. Allan McCauley of Elizabethtown. McCauley took the championship with Beauty at Elizabethtown in 1986, but was not expecting her to do as well in 1987 because she was dry.

Joe Ayers of Conoy Creek Farms, 225 Oberholtzer Road, Elizabethtown, took the open reserve champion position with Gray-Valley Segis Lea. The 2-year-old was sired by Green Ledge Segis Chief Ned. She came fresh in June and is presently producing about 70 pounds of milk per day according to Ayers.

In the Ayshire breed, Michelle Kerdeman, swept the championships with her 4-year-old Green Brae Princess, sired by Caverly Farms Pudge. John Stick of Lebanon was the breeder. Kerdeman is the 15-year-old daughter of Jules and Barbara Kerdeman of Manheim.

Angie Spickler, daughter of James and Linda Spickler of Mt. Joy, took the junior champion spots with St. C. Johnny K-Moon Angelique. This was the same calf she took the reserve grand championship with at the county 4-H round-up in Quarryville in July.

Justin Howse, 9-year-old son of Jay and Sue Howse of Elizabethtown, took the junior Holstein championship with his junior calf, Onyx. Fran Kennel, 12, of Mt. Joy took the junior reserve championship in the Holstein division. There were only two breeds shown at the fair dairy show.

Tom McCauley took the supreme dairy show honor with his 4-year-old. This was his second consecutive win at Elizabethtown.

Grand champion in the Ayrshire breed was won by Michelle Kerdeman (left) and juior champion was awarded to Angie Spickler.

Southdown Ewe Makes Supreme Sheep Champion

BY PAT PURCELL

A Southdown ewe owned by Mark Tracy of Masonic Homes in Elizabethtown captured the coveted title of supreme champion at the Elizabethtown Fair on Wednesday.

What is being touted as the largest sheep show in Lancaster County and taking second only to the Farm Show's sheep show attracted 230 entries into the show ring this year. This year's supreme champion was selected by the judge, Ron Miller manager of WEY Farms in Kutztown out of seven breeds. This year's show had an entry from the Oxford breed, a first for the fair.

Tracy recently added this Southdown ewe to his 14-sheep flock when he purchased it two months ago in Virginia. Tracy, is no stranger to the winner's circle. This is the fifth year of competition for this 11-year-old, son of Gerald and Helen Tracy. In 1986 he came as close as reserve supreme champion and his market lamb brought a record-setting price. Tracy also took the reserve championship in the Southdown competition.

Taking reserve supreme champion was the 117-pound Hampshire ewe exhibited by Ellen Lewis of Mount Joy. Lewis also won the grand and reserve titles in Hampshire breed, the the champion of lambs and the grand champion sale lamb.

Doug Martin of East Earl, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Martin, took both champion and reserve champion titles in the Cheviot division. Angela Schildt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Schildt of Elizabethtown, swept the top positions in the Dorset division. Carey Donches of Manheim captured the titles in the Suffolk division. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Donches. In the Shropshire division Arlisa Snavely of Lancaster took the championship and Connie Kline of Manheim took reserve champion.

Mark Tracy's (right) Southdown ewe was awarded the highest honor at the Elizabethtown Fair sheep show. Tracy's sheep was selected as the supreme sheep out of 230 animals. Ron Miller (left) judged the event. Ryan Tracy (center) gives his brother a hand.

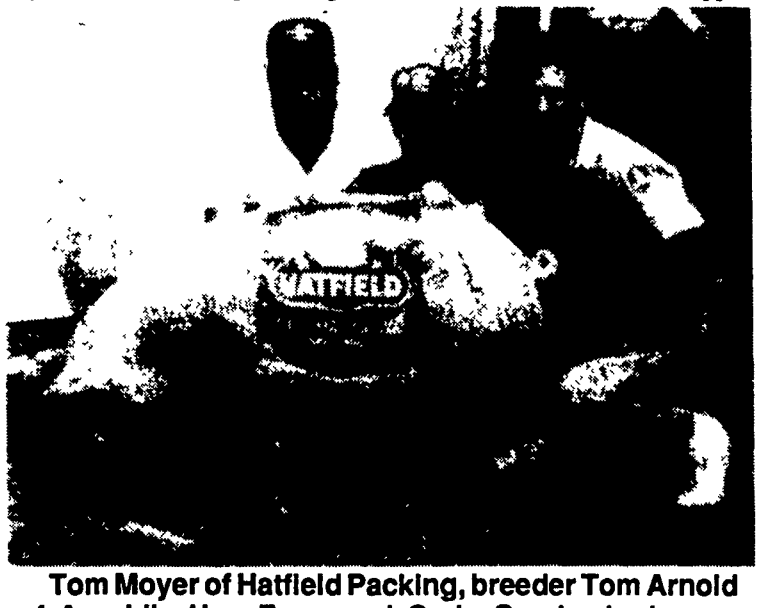
Snyder Takes Carbon Honors

LEHIGHTON — On August 17th the Carbon County 4-H Swine Club held its annual market hog show at the 109th Carbon County Fair. Lehighton's Craig Snyder saw his 240-pound light heavy weight take the grand champion honors, while his pen-of-three was also judged to be the best of the show. Snyder said he was unsure of his chances at the fair but could not have been happier with the judges decision. Snyder's hogs, purchased from Arnold's Hog Farm in Lebanon, also topped Thursday's sale. Hatfield Packing Company took home the grand champion for a sale topping $3.55 per pound. The champion pen-of-three brought 90 cents per pound from successful bidded Arnold's Hog Farm.



Tom Moyer of Hatfield Packing, breeder Tom Arnold of Arnold's Hog Farm and Craig Snyder look over Snyder's grand champion Carbon County 4-H market hog. Hatfield purchased the grand champion for $3.55 per pound.

After naming the champion, Judge Rod Gilbert, professor and farm manager at Delaware Valley College in Doylestown, went with a duroc cross owned by Kirk Cressley for the reserve champion. Cressley's heavy weight hog was also a member of the reserve champion pen-of-three and was bred by calvin Lazarus and Sons of Whitehall. Merchants Bank purchased the reserve champion animal, on Thursday, for $2.75 per pound. Representatives for Merchants Bank said they purchased the hog with the intention of raffling off the pork for the benefit of the Carbon County Easter Seal Society.

Other weight class champions were exhibited by Travis Steigerwalt in both the medium weight and heavy weight divisions, Heather Green in the heavy medium weight class, Marcy Shoemaker in the heavy light weights, and Laura Steigerwalt in the light weight class.

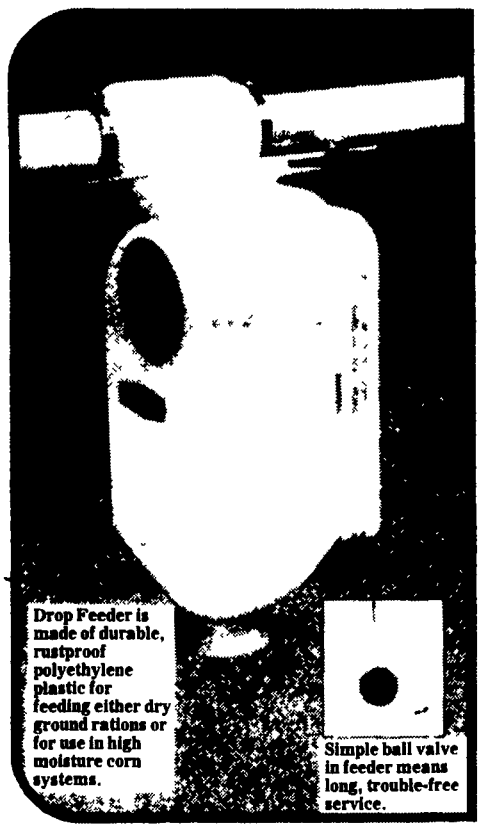
Kirk Cressley's reserve champion was purchased by Merchants Bank for $2.75 per pound. Pictured are Cressley, Gary Kuehner of Merchants Bank and Paulene Mertz of the Carbon County Easter Seal Society.

Thursday's sale average on the 45 head of hogs was 82 cents per pound and 70 cents per pound excluding the grand and reserve champions. Including the grand champions Hatfield Packing Company was the successful bidder on 27 head. Other buyers included the before mentioned Merchants Bank and Arnold's Hog Farm, as well as George's Foodliner of Bethlehem, Kuehner Brothers Farm of Lehighton, Snyder Ford Inc. of Lehighton, and Farm Credit.

CHORE-TIME®

CHORE-TIME COW FEEDING SYSTEM

Increase milk production while saving labor, feed



Drop Feeder is made of durable, rustproof polyethylene plastic for feeding either dry ground rations or for use in high moisture corn systems.

Simple ball valve in feeder means long, trouble-free service.

Put Chore-Time Cow Feeding System To Work Boosting Your Income

Feeding supplement by hand wastes money two ways:

(1.) Some cows get too much, others not enough -- wasting feed and hurting production.

(2.) It's time and labor spent you'd be money ahead to put into management. Mechanize your feeding with an inexpensive, energy-efficient Chore-Time Cow Feeding System. Feed each cow the right amount, as many times a day (to boost production) as you want by automatic timeclock, or by pulling a lever.

TWO TYPES OF FEED DELIVERY SYSTEMS (FLEX-AUGER or MULTIFLO™) AVAILABLE WITH THE CHORE-TIME COW FEEDING SYSTEM

FLEX AUGER

Ideal For Straighter Runs, Larger Capacities

Highly energy-efficient, extremely long wearing and trouble-free — that's how FLEX-AUGER systems are known the world over.

For most livestock and poultry feeding installations, plus for moving high or low moisture grain FLEX-AUGER is the ideal choice.

multiflo™

For Lots Of Turns, Sharper Corners, Greater Lengths

MULTIFLO is a new innovation using the same high tensile strength steel auger as on our famous FLEX-AUGER. But, instead of rotating the auger, a MULTIFLO system propels it within the tube. This sliding of the steel auger means there can be more corners and sharper corners in a system.

Discuss your particular needs with us to make the best choice of systems for your kind of animals and building layout.

Foraging Around

By Dr. John E. Baylor
Director of Market Development
Beachley-Hardy Seed Company

Dr. John E. Baylor
Director Market Development
Beachley-Hardy Seed Company

FIRST THE SEED

Forage specialists agree that a very important cog in your profitable forage program is high quality seed of adapted species, varieties and mixtures. In this month's column I'd like to visit with you about some of those quality forages and also try to help you understand seed better. In later columns we'll get back to adapted species and mixtures.

Quality- What is it?

Quality seed is especially important with small-seeded perennial legumes and grasses. Seeds of these species are extremely small and contain very little stored food material. Thus, unless you start with good seed and then follow with good seeding practices, you can end up with a seeding failure.

Let me assure you at the start that when you buy seed from your reputable dealer, quality is essentially not a concern. If, on the other hand, you rely on home grown seed you run the risk of planting seed that is inferior in both genetic quality and purity, i.e. freedom from seed seeds or other undesirable materials, as well as low germination.

What, then, is quality in seeds. It refers to genetic quality, germination and purity of a given seed lot or the vitality of the individual seeds.

Let's take a closer look at what these terms mean.

Genetic quality refers to the known heredity of the seed you buy. Historically, seed certification has been the accepted system used to assure genetic identity. The recently passed Plant Variety Protection Act (PVPA) offers further protection for named varieties of sexually reproduced plants such as alfalfa for which a certificate has been dully issued pursuant to the act. The Federal Seed Act makes it unlawful to sell non-certified seeds of a variety certified under the PVPA.

Purity refers to mechanical purity, i.e. the presence or absence of weed seed, other crop seed or inert matter. These, along with the species and variety name and percent germination are shown on the seed tag. So read the tag!

Percent germination refers to the number of seeds per 100 seeds that germinate satisfactorily under standard laboratory conditions. It's true that field conditions are never as favorable as laboratory conditions. And unfavorable field conditions affect germination and field stands hardest on low-quality seed. But the lab germination is still the accepted standard.

A seed with good vitality is one that not only germinates but produces a seedling capable of developing into an adult plant. Factors which affect vitality include: vigor of parent plants, climatic conditions during seed maturation, seed maturity, seed storage conditions and age of seed.

There's another term you will sometimes hear: seedling aggressiveness. This is a combination of speed of germination and emergence and the ability of the seedling to compete.

For example, of the legumes red clover is generally considered most aggressive followed by sweet clover, alfalfa and alsike clover, ladino clover, birdsfoot trefoil and crownvetch.

Perennial ryegrass tops the aggressiveness list of the perennial cool-season grasses and is followed in order by orchardgrass, tall fescue, bromegrass, timothy, reed canarygrass and kentucky bluegrass.

Also, in general for our small seeded, cool-season grasses, the smaller and lighter the seed, the more feeble is the establishment. For example, bluegrass and redtop have an establishment capacity of 20-25%, timothy 40-50%, and ryegrass about 60-80%. Thus, for these smaller seeded species such things as rate of seeding, depth of seeding, seedbed preparation and many other factors that you control are all critical.

We'll take a look at other aspects of getting good stands in later columns.

Good Idea To License Hunting Dogs

HARRISBURG — With the approach of hunting season, the State Department of Agriculture reminds Pennsylvania sportsmen that it is in their best interest to license hunting dogs.

"There is always an increase in lost animals during hunting season. A license is an invaluable means by which a dog can be recovered," noted William Kennedy, director of the Department's Bureau of Dog Law Enforcement.

The owner of a properly tagged dog can be contacted through the county in which the license was issued.

"The few dollars spent on the cost of a license is a good investment on time and money to protect an animal," Kennedy said.

The owner is also protected from a costly fine for failure to license. All dogs six months or older must be licensed under state law, and violations can result in fines of up to $300.

License fees are $3 for spayed or neutered dogs, $5 for others. For persons 65 and older who present proof of age, the fee is $1.75 for spayed and neutered animals and $2.75 for others. Licenses can be purchased at any county treasurer's office or through an authorized agent.

Kennedy also reminds per owners that dogs must be vaccinated for rabies. Not only is it law, but it makes good sense for hunting dogs to be vaccinated because they have frequent contact with wild animals, he said.

He advised sportsmen who come across a stray dog in the field to approach the animal cautiously to determine if it is wearing tags. If it is licensed, the appropriate county treasurer's office should be notified as soon as possible.

Nutrient Management

why nutrient runoff causes problems and they suggested solutions.

When manure and fertilizer are managed improperly, nitrogen and phosphorus pollutes the farmers own wells and the ground water which affects not only his neighbors but the Susquehanna River and Chesapeake Bay region.

Penn State scientists want to change that. They are convinced that the groundwater can be protected and that farmers can still have an effective agriculture industry within the state.

"Farmers got to get a profit," Dr. Baker said. "They can't stand more expense in cleaning up water."

As he sees it, cleaning up the water poses many problems. He asks, "Can we afford to destroy agriculture to control water problems?"

Workshop leaders maintained that there does not need to be a depression in crop yields by decreasing nutients. The initial cost for storage containers may seem prohibitive, but many farmers discover that nutrient management eventually benefits their profits when it results in less illnesses for livestock and less expense for unnecessary applications of crop fertilizers.

Les Lanyon, Associate Professor of Soil Fertility, said, "The farmers's record keeping system is the most important step to anaylsis in making better farming decisions." The college has worked hard at simplifying record keeping. If farmers use the forms they provide, the college can then feed that information into their computer which can pinpoint problem areas and show the farmer how much nutrients his soil needs and how much it is getting.

Baker demonstrated how a farmer can obtain individual help in nutrient management. He set-up and used a programmed computer by having a local farmer answer the required questions for analysis. In a few moments the print-out pinpointed problems and showed an overabundance of nutrient pollution.

The audience then commented and asked questions about the program. A few pointed out some possible loopholes in the program. Baker admitted the validity of those questions and promised to perfect the program by using their input in the future.

The College of Agriculture's goal is to attain an economically and environmentally sound on-farm nutrient management. For each individual farmer to accomplish that goal, he must know the nutrient requirement his soil needs to produce crops. Too much, results in an excess which the land cannot handle effectively. Ideally, the right amount will allow the soil to filter the bacteria before it reaches the ground water level.

"Nutrient management is a process—not an answer," Les Lanyon stressed. "It needs to get into the workings of the farm."

During the sessions and breaks, conversations buzzed with ideas, problems and possible solutions. Edwina Coder, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee for the Chesapeake Bay clean-up said that the committee is calling for nutrients to be reduced 40% instead of maintaining the same level as their goal originally stated.

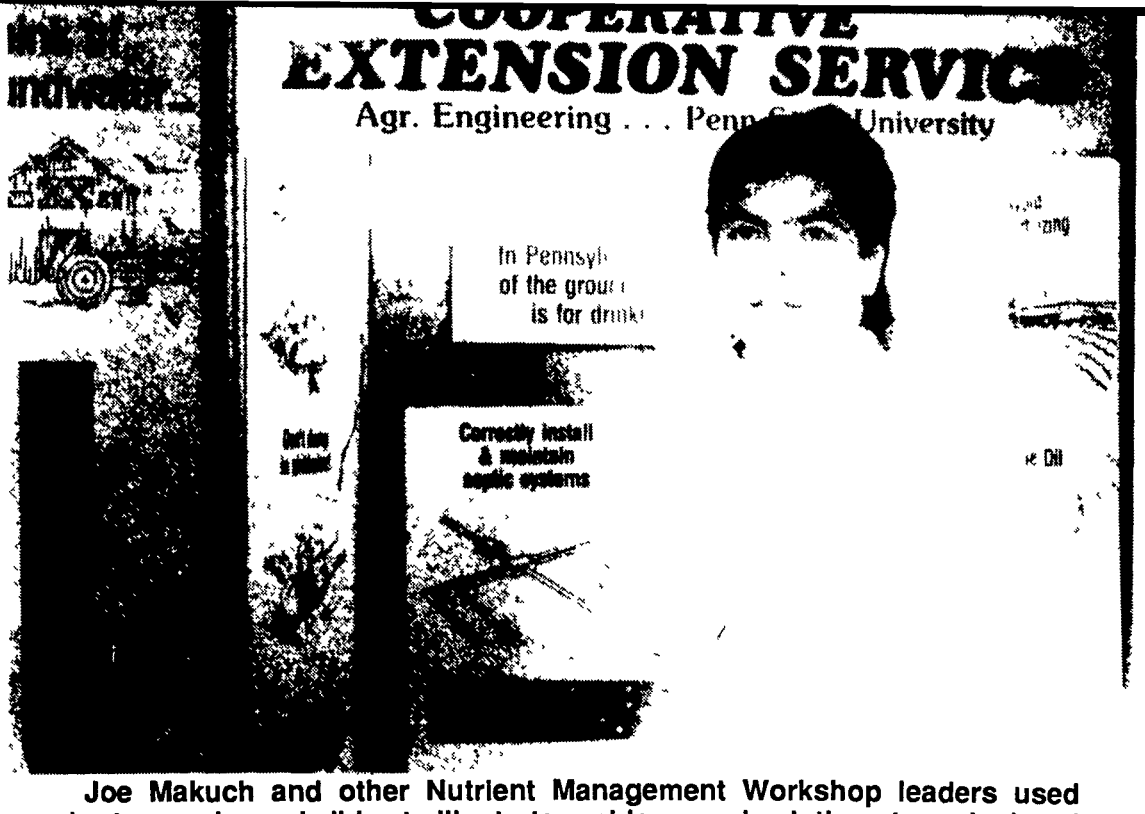
To protect the water from contamination, sealed wells should be located away from bacteria sources. Pesticide containers should never be dumped in sink holes because the poison goes directly into the ground water.

Nitrate, found in manure and fertilizer, which is important for crop growth, is very soluble and easily reaches the ground water when there is an excess. Statistics show that the nitrate percentages of water in agricultural areas is noticiably higher than in residential areas. It was pointed out that the percentages are not necessarily accurate since actual samples were usually derived from farmers' wells rather than the agriculture community. But it does show that "Farmers are polluting their own wells," said Baker.

Workshop participants agreed that water pollution can not be ignored. The common contaminents of pesticides and manure bacteria can cause illnesses and in some cases death especially to infants. Since nutrient run-off effects the population's drinking water, this issue will probably be one of the most discussed subjects in the late '80's and '90's.

Whether farmers like it or not, they must comply with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources standards. Personnel from the agriculture college are initiating and conducting several projects to aid the farmer in making agriculture economically and evironmentally sound.

Workshop speakers included Mitch Woodward, Regional Manure Management Agent; Al Turgeon, Head, Department of Agronomy and Penn State/Chesapeake Bay Project Coordinator; Joe Makuch, Water Quality Specialist, Department of Agricultural Engineering; Les Lanyon, Associate Professor of Soil Fertility, Department of Agronomy; Dale Baker, Professor of Soil Chemistry, Department of Agronomy; Douglas Beegle, Assistant Professor of Agronomy, Department of Agronomy; and Richard Fox, Professor of Soil Science, Department of Agronomy.



Joe Makuch and other Nutrient Management Workshop leaders used charts, graphs and slides to illustrate problems and solutions to agricultural pollution. Makuch is a Water Quality Specialist with Penn State's Department of Agriculture Engineering.

Receiving the grand champion award was Jadene Very Rae, an 86 point senior two year old. She was bred by James Smith of Roaring Spring, Pa., and is currently owned by Steve Hoover, Ed Doebereiner and Bob Gallivan. Jefferson R. Byler, Petersburg also repeated last years performances by having grand champion bull with the same bull: Bylerlawn Correlator. He is a son of Kishview Correlation.

Mr. Byler also had the reserve champion bull. Bylerlawn Valiant Master-ET a son of SWD Valiant easily topped the junior bull calf to join his herdmate in the champion's circle.

Ag Preserve Sets Meetings

Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board is sponsoring informal public meetings on the designation of agricultural preserve in Colerain and East Drumore Townships. The meetings are scheduled for Thursday, September, 3, at 7:30 p.m. at the Colerain Municipal Building on Kirkwood Pike, Kirkwood, and Tuesday, September 8, 7:30 p.m. at the Hoffman Community Building, Park Avenue, Quarryville.

The proposed agricultural preserves would make land owners eligible to voluntarily sell a conservation easement to the Agricultural Preserve Board and establish protective right to farm policies. Several Colerain land owners have requested that the ag preserve be proposed.

Agricultural preserves are created because state law requires that the Agricultural Preserve Board identify priority farm land areas in which to spend preservation dollars.

The purpose of the public meetings will be to inform land owners and answer questions about the effects of the Agricultural Preserve Board and the voluntary conservation easement program. Contact: Lancaster County Agricultural Preserve Board, 50 North Duke Street, P.O. Box 3480, Lancaster, PA 17603. Alan R. Musselman, director, or Karen M. Weiss, preservation specialist, 717-299-8355.

Farmers Union Conducts Survey

Pa. Farmers Union surveys indicates dairy farmers want changes. Chester Reed, Executive Secretary of the Penna. Farmers Union (P.F.U.) announced today that a survey taken of dairy farmers by P.F.U. at New York State's Empire Field Days and Penna. Ag Progress Days indicates that dairy farmers overwhelmingly support the concept of a milk Supply Management Program. Out of the 908 dairy farmers surveyed at the two events, 71.3% favored a milk supply management program.

Reed said, in New York State the percentage was 67.4 in favor and in Penna. the support for a supply program was a staggering 75.1%.

The questionnaire presented to the dairy farmers centered around milk supply programs, milk prices, imports and milk quality.

In response to the question, do you favor allowing milk prices to continue to decline in an attempt to correct the National Surplus Situation? 88% of the dairymen said no.

The dairymen were also asked what they thought the milk blend price should average on a year round basis. New York dairy farmers felt a $14.35 per cwt. price was needed and in Penna. the price was $14.25 per cwt.

Allen Deiter, President of Penna. Farmers Union from Northumberland County said our organization has long sought a milk supply program that would keep production of milk in line with the domestic milk market and return prices to the dairymen to cover the average cost of production plus a reasonable profit on the dairymen's investment. Reed said he felt dairy farmers were entitled to a 10% return on their investment.

In both states 88% of the farmers felt that imports of dairy products had an adverse effect on the dairy farmers milk check.

Reed and Deiter concurred that the imports of dairy products would have to be brought under tighter controls to enable a milk supply program to work.

Arden Tewksbury, Manager of Northern Tier Farmers Union Milk Co. Op. who supervised the questionnaire said that in New York State the dairy farmers that responded to the type of milk supply program they favored, 65.2% supported a quota program, while in Penna. 51.4% favored quotas.

Tewksbury said 60% of dairy farmers in both states favored a monetary value being placed on quotas.

Also 65% of dairy farmers in both states feel the present advertising program is beneficial.

In conclusion, Reed said the message we received in both states was very clear. Dairymen don't want their milk prices to decline any further, they want imports of dairy products to be cut back and they know they need $14.30 per cwt. as an average yearly blend price.

Antiques In Decorating

Antiques in your home indicate an interest in history and the past, a desire to preserve and live with the rare and cherished and a com mitment to share this fascination.

Use antiques as accessories, conversation pieces or for their intended, practical use. Sturdy furniture, dishes, vases, flatware, quilts and tapestries can all be used with care suggests Delaware County Extension home economist Maryetta Dorricott. The same principle of design — color, texture and shape — should be considered as for any furnishing for the home. Old kitchen tools, woodenware, toys or spinning wheels should be used as art objects or pieces of sculpture for their beauty of form and finish

Don't paint an antique to match your kitchen or plant a vine to trail around a spinning wheel. Instead, use a dry sink to display an old wash bowl or pitcher set, it was not meant to contain a metal tray full of plants. Old crocks (if clean) are great for holding wooden spurtles or dried flower arrangements since they were designed to "hold" things. A copper kettle looks uncomfortable with objects protruding from its top; it was made to pour.

Use antiques with integrity for love of their history, construction and character. Don't alter a piece that is old and rare if you can avoid it. For example, cutting the base down on a round oak table to make a cocktail table ruins the table. When these tables were inexpensive, it was fashionable to make this change. Round oak tables now command incredible prices; those that were cut down have lost much of their original value. When a piece of one object is combined with another to make a complete whole, it is known as "cannabalizing." Using parts from different pieces to make a whole decreases the value.

Visit museums and historic villages to see how antiques are used in designing interiors. Try to work toward using your treasures so they look natural and not contrived. A coffee grinder in the dining room or kitchen looks more natural than in a bedroom or living room. Furniture, draperies, and appliances are standard; accessories reflect your character and that of your family.

During that time she will represent the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania speaking out for milk and all dairy products.

The Pageant which will again be held on the Saturday evening preceding All-American week, will end two full days of activities and interviews for the contestants. Four judges, all from out-of-state, will select a Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and a first and second alternate from seven finalists.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program is supported by Pennsylvania Dairy Farmers through their various advertising and promotion agencies: American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Inc., Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Agency, Federal Order #36, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program as well as the Department of Agriculture and contributions from other dairy related organizations and individuals. Again this year, as the result of a grant from Sire Power, Inc. and several anonymous individuals the awards to the winners will be: $1200 to the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess with her alternates receiving $500 and $400 respectively.

In addition, three girls will receive $100.00 awards for outstanding original dairy promotion presentations and two will receive $50 awards for compiling scrapbooks which chronicle their dairy princess activities. All contestants will receive a two day stay at the Marriott and an appropriate gift. The contestants themselves will select the coveted "Miss Congeniality" award from among their own ranks.

The primary purpose of the Dairy Princess program in Pennsylvania is the promotion of the Dairy Industry and its products on the local grass roots level. Incentive Awards will again be given to the counties whose last year's princess and her committee completed the incentive requirements. This year over thirty counties will be recognized.

In addition an individual award of $300 will be given to the one young lady who stood out as the outstanding dairy promoter during her county reign. This award, is entitled the "Tina Shultz Memorial Award" in memory and honor of the outstanding young lady, who in May 1986 succombed to cancer, during her reign as Huntingdon County Dairy Princess.

Pa. Dairy Princess and Promotion Services announces that the Saturday morning presentation session will be open to the public free of charge. It will run from 8:00 a.m. until 12:00 noon. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Saturday evening, September 19th promises to be an exciting evening for forty-two young ladies and their families as well as for our Pennsylvania Dairy Industry. Tickets for the event are $15.00 per person and are available on a "first come" basis from Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services, Inc., 214 South Street, Box 640, Clarion, Pa. 16214 (814) 226-7470.

Ticket request deadline is September 16, 1987.

We urge ALL friends of the dairy industry to attend and lend their support to these hard working young ambassadors.

30 YEARS AGO
THIS WEEK

- The Pennsylvania drought appeared to be moving westward as some regions reported poor crop conditions for the week ended Monday, the State Department of Agriculture said Wednesday.

Scattered areas from Indiana to Fayette Counties and into Lawrence County reported wilted corn, poor hay crops and burned pastures. This has been the general condition of crops in southeastern Pennsylvania for more than a month, observers said.

- Russet Mites, found in Lancaster County, this year for the first time in three years, pose a threat to the tomato grower, according to Associate Agent Harry S. Sloat.

Sloat told growers at a series of meetings last week that the insect is of nearly microscopic size and multiplies at a tremendous rate during hot weather. Its presence can be detected by general bronzing or yellowing of the tomato plant stem and leaves.

- Now Is The Time... to beware of poisonous plants. Nightshade, buttercups, milkweed, pokeberries, hemlock and celandine are common to this area and will kill if consumed.

- Now Is The Time... to cut forage crops when ready, to consider dual wheat... to wait for moisture for summer seedings... to make plans for covering horizontal silos.

- With drought damage to farm crops piling up losses day by day in southeastern Pennsylvania, State Secretary of Agriculture W.L. Henning today outlined steps that farmers in stricken counties should take in requesting disaster relief.

Sisters Win Hog Show

ELIZABETHTOWN — A pair of belted Hampshire crossbreds won the Elizabethtown Fair Market Hog Show for a pair of sisters--Karen and Melissa Becker, daughters of Marlin and Nancy Becker, Manheim R3.

For Karen who had the grand champion from the middleweight division winning was not new since she had won the prestigious junior market hog grand championship at the State Farmshow and also topped the Manheim Farmshow for the last two years.

But for little Melissa this was only her second show, and she maneuvered the heavyweight champion into the reserve grand champion spot under the watchful eye of Judge Keith Bard, a Cambria County hog farmer.

When asked how they keep coming up with these winners, Becker family members said you need to start with a good prospect. The Beckers also keep their entries in an exercise lot rather than on a slanted floor.

Other winners in the opening-night activities included: Tracy Bollinger, champion lightweight; Sharon Haldeman, reserve champion lightweight; Dennis Haldeman, reserve champion middleweight and Tayler Stumpf, reserve champion heavyweight. The placings according to Judge Bard are as follows:

Ellen Lewis sold her market lamb to Leroy Fox, Fox Markets, Middletown, for a record $7.75 a pound.

Doug Musser with champion steer that sold to Chris Kunzler III for $2.00 a pound. Kunzler also purchased Karen Becker's champion hog for $5.00 a pound.

Musser Wins First Championship In E-town Beef Show

BY PAT PURCELL

"It's about time," was all Doug Musser had to say as he left the show ring at the Elizabethtown Fair Beef Show on Wednesday night with the grand champion trophy.

"I've been doing this for seven years and this is the first time I won the championship. It's about time," said Musser, the 16-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Z. Musser of 566 Green Tree Road, Elizabethtown.

For seven years Musser has been raising beef steers in 4-H and FFA as projects and this was his first champion. Musser's time had certainly arrived. As he walked his grand champion, named Beef, to the barn, his second steer was being selected as the reserve champion.

Musser's 1230-pound grand champion is a crossbreed Angus, Chianina, Simmental and Hereford. He was bred by Ollie Bennett of Frederick, Md.

Cumberland County extension agent, David Hartman, judged the 15-steer event. Hartman selected the steer because of its excellent height and length and uniformity throughout.

"This steer clearly dominates the group we have here tonight," said Hartman.

This grand champion, although may not have seen the winner's circle before, has been in the spotlight before. Beef made an appearance in the television commercial for Kunzler's all-beef franks a few months ago.

The reserve champion named Buckwheat, weighed in Wednesday night at 1180 pounds. He an Angus-Chianina bred by Fred Frey of Quarryville.

In the showmanship and fitting competition, Dwayne Coble of Dauphin County took the senior showmanship award in the beef show.

E-town Auction Lamb Sets Record

When the sold was said at the Elizabethtown Fair Livestock Auction, some impressive prices could be reported. At $7.75 a pound, Ellen Lewis's champion market lamb sold to Fox Markets, Middletown, for a fair record. Willie The Butcher from Stauffers of Kissel Hill bought the reserve champion lamb shown by Jessica Stoltzfus for $4.50 a pound.

The grand champion steer for Doug Musser was purchased by Kunzler and Company Inc., Lancaster, for $2.00 a pound. The prize steer had been used for a Kunzler television commercial earlier this year. Chris Kunzler III also bought Karen Becker's supreme champion hog for $5.00 a pound. The reserve champion hog shown by Melissa Becker was purchased by Hatfield Packing Company at $3.50 a pound.

Average for the 80 hogs in the sale was 87 cents a pound. In the lamb sale 44 head averaged $1.76 a pound. Only one steer the grand champion was sold.

Oriental Mushroom Promises Health, Nutrition And Unique Flavor

BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming Co. Correspondent

Perhaps a distinctive orangish-brown mushroom has already appeared on the shelves of your local supermarket. If not, it is the fervent hope of David Kim, president of Green Empire Inc., in Montour County, and other shiitake (pronounced sha-tok-ee) growers that you will soon have the opportunity to experience the unique flavor of mushrooms grown in oak logs and once reserved for Chinese royalty.

Although Green Empire Inc. is almost four years-old, Kim and three partners purchased the company from its original owners six months ago. With the help of Clarence McMichael, a neighbor who owns a small shiitake operation, Kim is in the process of learning the finer points of growing shiitake mushrooms. McMichael explains that the market for these mushrooms is presently so large that there is little danger of Kim and he becoming competitors for some time and currently they are of mutual benefit to one another.

According to McMichael, the shiitake mushroom also known as the oak, oyster and enoki mushrooms in this country, has occurred naturally for thousands of years in the forests of Japan and China.

McMichael says residents discovered if they ate the mushroom which grows almost exclusively on oak logs they felt better.

Information supplied by Kim supports this claim by noting that,

The mushrooms are grown in four foot logs. Here growers arrange the logs to lean at a 45 degree angle during their growing season.

Clarence McMichael shows a log that has purchased spawn the size of a thumb pressed into drilled holes spaced five to six inches apart.

David Kim, president by Gwen Empire, Inc., hopes grocery stores everywhere will soon carry shiitake mushrooms.

"The oak mushroom has been served as the elixir of life to orientals for its unique taste and flavor for a long time and as a nutritious food containing proteins, sugars and various vitamins... which contains large amounts of thiamine, riboflavin and especially Vitamin D."

At first, McMichael says, the royalty tried to keep this unique mushroom to themselves. By roping off the forests where the mushrooms grew and posting guards, they kept the peasants out. Later they discovered they could transport the logs to woods near their homes and harvest the mushrooms there. According to McMichael, that was the beginning of the cultivation of the shiitake mushroom.

In recent years, Kim says, oriental countries such as Japan, South Korea, and Taiwan have become major producers of cultivated oak mushrooms. At the present time Japan supplies almost 80 percent of the total world consumption.

Shiitake mushroom production is a relatively new industry in the United States. For a time, McMichael reports, the Japanese shipped the mushrooms to the United States. But due to shipping costs, a more plentiful supply of oak logs in the United States, and what they regard as a large potential market in this country, growers have been establishing shiitake mushroom operations here.

One of the oldest and biggest shiitake mushroom plants in the United States is Elix located near Richmond, Virginia which is six years-old. McMichael notes other plants are locted in Michigan, Wisconsin, and northern California.

Declining to describe the flavor of the shiitake, McMichael merely says that it has a distinctive taste quite different from other mushrooms.

"The main thing is the flavor of it. It has a unqiue flavor. There is not another mushroom like it," McMichael exclaims, "It gives off flavor, it doesn't take it in."

While noting that other mushrooms take on the flavor of the food with which they are prepared, McMichael stresses, "this is definitely not the case with shiitake mushrooms," and he chuckles at the thought of someone sprinkling shiitake mushrooms on a pizza.

Shiitake mushrooms are ready to be shipped to supermarkets.

McMichael says he prefers his shiitake mushrooms sauteed, while Kim's favorite way of eating his product is stuffed with crabmeat.

A visitor to Green Empire Inc. will see only a few small buildings in a forest clearing unless he searches the woods where the 40,000 4'x7' diameter logs that are the heart of the operation are located. Dispersed among the trees, the logs are either leaning at a 45 degree angle against a wire or stacked horizontally depending

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

We flew west several days before our tour of Alaska so that we could visit our daughter and her family in Seattle.

We spent some time at their summer home on Camano Island north of the city. One day I picked some of her everbearing strawberries for breakfast. While we were there we had an opportunity to dig some Little Neck clams and also go fishing in their boat. We had meals at a Chinese restaurant and later at a Mexican one in Seattle.

One day we toured the Skagit hydroelectrical plants. They took 50 people 600 feet up Sourdough Mountain on an Incline Railway. The platform was pulled by a 400 horse power electric motor and a counterbalance. We also boarded a boat and cruised the Diablo Lake to see the Ross Powerhouse. All of this was followed by a big chicken dinner.

My husband attended a Mariners baseball game in the Kingdome and I hoped to see the Aquarium but it was closed when we got there. However, the next morning we drove to Pike Place Market where many beautiful and unusual flowers were for sale along with unusual vegetables and herbs.

Then came a rather bad start to our flight to Anchorage. You see, we had to "sit" in the airport for six hours. Due to mechanical problems our flight was cancelled completely and we had to get another one. We flew 500 miles per hour at 39,000 feet and when we arrived at 10 p.m. in Anchorage it was still daylight but we retired anyway as we were tired.

Half of Alaska's population live in Anchorage. We walked throughout the town and saw the Museum of History. At noon we drove by bus to the Alyeska Ski Resort where we ate a lunch of soup and a big sourdough bun. Next we had one of our most memorable experiences -- a one and one-half mile long ride to the top of a mountain on a double ski lift. We are lucky that the weather was clear and the view was terrific. We also saw Portage Glacier. The icebergs come from a 13,000 year old glacier and the ice is very blue.

Get The Vitamin Value

Iron deficiency is a nutritional problem in the United States. Iron may be abundant in your diet but meager in your body because the mineral is difficult to absorb.

There are ways to help you get the iron you need. Heme iron — found only in meat or blood-containing foods — is more easily absorbed than nonheme iron — found in plants, iron supplements, and iron fortification sources. In addition, consuming meat with other foods will enhance the absorption of iron from the non-meat foods.

Ascorbic acid (vitamin C) is a potent enhancer of iron absorption. Vegetarians whose meals include fruits and vegetables that are good sources of ascorbic acid can significantly increase the amount of absorbable iron in the meat.

Try to avoid drinking tea with meals. Tea can cut iron absorption by as much as 50 percent.

upon what state of production they are in at the moment.

"The logs, left as waste by loggers after an area has been timbered," McMichael says, "are cut to four foot lengths mainly because that size can be handled by a man most easily." The implanted mushroom spawn grows on the cambrium layer of the logs by absorbing nutrients and letting the wood rot.

Using an electric drill, holes approximately ½" diameter by ¾" deep are bored into the logs every five to six inches at specific intervals around the log. Purchased spawn about the size of a thumb is pressed into each hole. Next, the holes are sealed with styrofoam, plastic plugs or more commonly, a wax resin mixture. The mushrooms start appearing in about a year.

According to McMichael, the first year an average log may produce one to two pounds of mushrooms, and in succeeding years two to four pounds, depending on the diameter of the log. The logs will produce three to five years if maintained properly. Proper humidity and shade, McMichael observes, are important requirements for optimum growth of the shiitake. If the logs become too dry, they may split and kill the spawn.

The mushrooms are hand-harvested daily. The mushroom cap needs to be 50 to 60 percent open to be sold as a fresh product or 70 to 80 percent open to be sold as a dried product.

Growing the mushrooms is not problem-free. Pests like snails eat the mushrooms, beetles bore into the bark and open the way for other fungus, and a little black fly eats the spawn of the mushrooms.

Kim and McMichael presently market their product in large metropolitan areas such as New York City and Philadelphia where there are sizeable Oriental populations. But both men are confident that the American market will continue to grow.

Their biggest competitor, they say, is artificial logs where the shiitak spawn is grown in an artificially-controlled environment. Right now, McMichael points out, Americans don't differentiate between naturally grown mushrooms such as they produce and artificially grown ones, but as they become more sophisticated consumers, he is confident that they will taste the difference.

By next summer when his operation is in full swing, Kim says, he hopes to produce about 2,000 pounds of mushrooms per week.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

A major breakthrough has recently been announced by scientists researching methods to safely dispose of toxic wastes.

University of California researchers have reportedly patented a process in which unique bacteria feast on PCB's. PCB's, or polychlorinated biphenyls, are substances which accumulate in the environment, and our own bodies, and do not degrade through natural processes of deterioration.

These substances are generally byproducts of modern technology. PCB's are found especially in insulation in such necessities as television sets, space heaters and electrical capacitors. Such stuff tossed in a dump or buried in a landfill may live for practically eternity, the residues gradually working their way into our bodies through the environment.

So, if microscopic organisms can now gobble up and render relatively harmless the PCB molecules, reducing a dangerous and long-term environmental threat, a standing ovation for those researchers.

But, do you suppose we could find some bacteria to devour the molecular structure of some of the "toxic waste" which accumulates around the average American farmstead?

Like glass bottles tossed in a pasture or hayfield by thoughtless litterbugs, for instance.

Glass isn't toxic? It well might be to a cow, sheep, hog, or horse that steps on a broken piece and dies from the resulting infection. Or a farmer whose blood pressure shoots sky high when a bottle goes flying through a forage chopper, contaminating the entire load with glass slivers.

Metal cans pose similar threats, although they may eventually deteriorate faster than glass. They shred quite nicely -- and flatten fabulously -- when run through chopping and baling equipment.

So how about some bacteria that munch aluminum and steel cans? And others which fatten off piles of tires dumped in your woodlot by a sneak in the night? Or refrigerators, dishwashers, stoves and related miscellaneous large appliances often "donated" to isolated areas and distant field corners?

There are a few other farm residues which would likewise benefit from methods of fast, tidy, bacterial-aided deterioration.

Aging, forgotten stretches of barbed wire top my list. These enter the environment due to heifers, like our Holly, who haven't yet found a fence they couldn't flatten. While barbed wire has long been discharged here in favor or safer fencing materials, ancient residues are still occasionally resurrected from weedy corners of old pastures.

These are generally only found by your best cows, recently fresh and milking about a hundred pounds a day. Discovery of the results of this "toxic residue" will come at milking time, when you're greeted with a slashed and bleeding udder or sliced teats.

Some days I would opt to add baling twine to the list. Except that baling twine often self-destructs, usually an hour or two after it's used to tie a gate shut. Otherwise, the stuff lies in wait in the heifer feed alley to snag the foot of some farm wife in a great hurry to finish chores.

A need also exists for rubber--barn-boot-dissolving bacteria. Boots with gaps big enough for a cat to crawl through tend to accumulate around farms, just in case anyone ever has a need for foot protection on a dry day in a grassy field.

Ditto for barn sneakers with flapping soles, toe ventilation and well-cured coatings of feedlot residue.

And maybe farm shop grease rags. Or maybe not.

'Cause everyone knows that farm grease rags never die. They just frayed away.

The finalists are Rebecca Donovan, Hermitage (Mercer County); Tony DeSantis, Wilkes-Barre (Luzerne County); Marlene McCall, Baden (Beaver County); Gwendolyn Gray, Schellsburg (Bedford County); Blanche Kinch, Dillsburg (York County); Lissy Weirich, Carlisle (Cumberland County); William Wilson, Marysville (Perry County); Deborah Yandric, Middletown (Dauphin County); Margaret Bittner, Germansville (Lehigh County); and Gloria Bove, Bethlehem (Lehigh County).

The stage is now set to select the top egg dish in Pennsylvania for 1987, according to Ronald Gaskill, Director of the Bureau of Market Development, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. The finals will take place on Saturday, September 12 at the Northern Lebanon High School, Fredericksburg, PA. Contestants will prepare their dishes for a panel of judges. The dishes will be judged on a staggered basis as they are finished. The winner will receive a check for $1,000 and will be automatically entered in the National Contest sponsored by the American Egg Board. Prizes of $4,000, $2,000 and $1,000 will be awarded to the top three National finalists.

Featured Recipe

This week's featured recipe comes from Shirley McMichael, wife of shiitake mushroom grower Clarence McMichael. The shiitake mushrooms, once reserved for Chinese royalty, are in demand in the United States. Those who have tasted shiitake mushrooms, say it has an unique flavor--one that you will want to try again and again.

In this section, read more about this unusual mushroom and how it is grown.

Shiitake Omelette

1 tablespoon oil
¼ cup chopped green pepper
¼ cup chopped onion
⅓ cup shiitake mushrooms, chopped
4 eggs
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon water
⅓ cup Monterey Jack Cheese

Heat oil in skillet, add pepper, onion, mushrooms. Stir and fry until peppers tender. Remove vegetables from skillet. Wipe skillet with paper towel.

In separate bowl, beat eggs and stir in black pepper. Heat water in skillet. Add eggs and cook until done. Sprinkle eggs with vegetables and cheese. Use spatula to fold omelette into thirds. Let stand 1 minute until cheese melts. Season with salt. Serve.

Versatile Tomatoes

Sprinkle tomatoes with salt. Let stand one hour. Drain. cover tomatoes with boiling water. Let stand 5 minutes. Drain.

Add grated rind and pulp of orange. Mix all ingredients and simmer until thickened. Pack in jars and process 20 minutes or freeze. If the mincemeat is used for pie, dot with butter when ready to bake in pie crust.

TOMATO BREAD

1 package active dry yeast
¼ cup warm water (105-115 degrees)
¼ teaspoon sugar
2 cups tomato juice, fresh or canned
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons sugar
6-6½ cups flour

Combine yeast with warm water and ¼ teaspoon sugar in small bowl. Let sit until foamy, about 10 minutes. Heat tomato juice and butter in a saucepan just until war. Butter does not need to melt. In large bowl, combine salt; 2 tablespoons sugar and 2 cups flour. Blend well. Add tomato juice mixture and yeast mixture to flour mixture and beat 50 strokes. With wooden spoon, gradually stir in remainder of flour, ½ cup at a time to make a stiff dough.

Dough is ready when it begins to pull away from sides of the bowl. Don't add more flour than necessary. Turn out on a floured surface and knead, adding only enough flour as needed until dough is mooth and satiny—about 10 minutes. Put dough in greased bowl, turning once to grease top. Cover bowl with a towel and set in warm place to rise until double in bulk. Takes about 1¼ hours.

Punch down; turn out on lightly floured board and knead to remove air bubbles. Divide in 2 portions. Shape into smooth ovals. Pinch bottom seam, turn ends under and seal.

Put in lightly greased pans; seam side down; cover and let rise again in a warm place until almost double (about 45 minutes). Bake in 350 degree oven about 45 minutes until nicely browned. Makes 2 loaves.

Sewing Pile Knits, Knitted Terry Cloth, Velour Or Chenille

The rich texture and stretch of pile knits, terry cloth and chenille — while great for comfort and good looks — can make sewing a little tricky. Following are some tips for best results, suggests Maryetta Dorricott, Delaware County Cooperative Extension Home Economist. . .

Because these fabrics lend themselves to soft shapes rather than tailored lines, look for a pattern with simple, uncluttered construction — few pattern pieces, darts or seams. Unpressed pleats, gathers and soft folds all work well.

Choose styles with wrap, drawstring or elasticized details instead of a zipper and buttonholes, which may pull or distort the pile. Check your fabric with the 'stretch guide' for knits on the pattern. Before you sew, make any alterations in the pattern before you cut; removing stitches from pile fabric can be difficult.

Use a "with nap" fabric layout to insure consistency of shading. To make cutting easier and ensure that cutting lines are followed accurately, cut with the pile, a single layer at a time. Use ballpoint pins or tailor's tacks to transfer pattern markings to fabric. A tracing wheel may mar the pile or stretch the fabric, and pencil or chalk markings will get lost in the pile.

4-H'ers Honored At Montgomery 4-H Fair

Tricia McMahon of Green Lane and Henry Wojton of Trappe were named the 1987 Outstanding 4-H Boy and Girl for Montgomery County at special ceremonies held during the recent 4-H Fair in Creamery. The winners received a plaque from 4-H and a $50 savings bond donated by Harleysville National Bank. Tricia and Henry will represent 4-H at numerous functions and will be available for speaking engagements.

Tricia is an 8 year member who is active in Furry Friends Rabbit and Cavy Club and the 4-H Toastmasters Junior Leadership Program. She had the honor of representing Pennsylvania at the "Profiles for Tomorrow" program in Washington, D.C. as one of a select group of teen leaders who had input into the future direction of the 4-H program. Tricia serves as a teen representative on the 4-H Cabinet Advisory Board. She has been a camp counselor, has attended Leadership Congress, Capital Days, State 4-H Achievement Days, PAFC and was a staff member at Pa. 4-H Week at Penn State this summer. Tricia graduated from Boyertown Area High School where she was active in music and drama. She plans on attending Widener University this fall to major in Hotel Management.

Henry Wojton has been in the Trappe Club for eight years. Henry was just named the state winner in the Forestry category of the National 4-H Awards program and will attend the National 4-H Congress in Chicago. He has been a teen leader teaching bike safety and archery. As a camp counselor he served as an archery and ropes course instructor. He attended Leadership Congress and was an advisor for the Pa. 4-H Week. Henry also attended 4-H Capital Days, Teen Ambassador Weekend, been named a 4-H Teen Ambassador, taken the Toastmasters Junior Leadership Course and traveled to Colorado this summer with the Exchange Club. Henry will be a Junior at St. Pius X School in Pottstown where he is active in baseball and football. Henry plans a career in horticulture and helps with the family nursery business.

Six other members were also named as finalists. They included Dan Cochran of Trappe, Andy Kumpf of Norristown, Judy Park and Sheryl Hunter of North Wales, Cindy Bauman of Lansdale and Leslie Bartholomew of Royersford.

According to Nancy Kadwill, 4-H Coordinator, just being among the finalists is quite an honor. "These eight teens represent the outstanding individuals among the nearly 3,000 4-H members in the county. We are proud of all of them and what they have accomplished." Kadwill noted the members were originally selected on the basis of a detailed record known as Blue Form. The finalists were then interviewed by a panel of judges to select the top two individuals.

Three Countians Attend Citizenship Washington Focus

LANCASTER — Three Lancaster County 4-H'ers participated in a week-long stay in Washington, D.C., attending Citizenship Washington Focus at the National 4-H Center.

Stacey Goss, Pequea; Sallie Gregory, Lititz; and Amy Jo Strausbaugh, Manheim, joined 4-H'ers from 45 other states to participate in the summer program designed as a citizenship and leadership training program. Stacey is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Goss; Sallie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory; and Amy Jo is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Strausbaugh.

The young people had the opportunity to examine the United States Constitution, increase their understanding of American Government, their rights and responsibilities as American citizens and their American heritage.

Throughout the week, the 4-H'ers participated in field trips to historical and cultural sights such as Mount Vernon, Arlington National Cemetery, and the JFK Center for Performing Arts.

A highlight for the young people was meeting with Congressman Robert Walker, and spending a day on Capitol Hill, getting a close-up view of the political process.

Retired Couple Blend Artistic Talents

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG — Daisy Knepper appears to be the average wife of a retired farmer. She keeps an immaculate house, talks about her grandchildren, and wins prizes at the county fair for her jams, jellies and afghans.

A visitor to the farmhouse where she lives with her husband Jaye notices many excellent oil paintings on the walls. Most depict old, local buildings such as springhouses and barns. Several are of fruit arrangements. Daisy does not call the visitor's attention to the paintings; instead, she talks about her bell collection or her husband's woodworking.

If a visitor looks closely at these paintings — and their beauty tends to encourage close inspection — the viewer will realize that Daisy herself is the artist.

If pressed, Daisy, 67, will talk about her work, but only with extreme modesty.

All the paintings of buildings were done from snapshots. "It takes me too long to sketch it to sit out there," she explained. Buildings take a long time to capture in oils — she can do about three during a winter, in her spare time. The still-life paintings were assignments for an art class she took.

Daisy Knepper shows picture she painted.

Daisy was Artist of the Month at Chambersburg Hospital in 1977. She has taken lessons from three local artists over a period of ten or fifteen years. One of her still-lifes won a prize at Godfrey Biehl's yearly exhibit at St. John's Church in Chambersburg.

Daisy has painted about one hundred pictures in her career. Earlier, she had taken orders and sold some paintings, but is not currently doing so.

An interesting aspect of Daisy's paintings is that they help to preserve local history. Many of the buildings she has depicted in her artwork are no longer standing.

Jaye Knepper enjoys working with his lathe.

Daisy and Jaye married in 1939. In 1953, they bought the farm

Life With Country Twins

Melanie loves to brush her rabbit's long fur. The rabbit must not enjoy having her picture taken because she hid her ears.

BY LOU ANN GOOD

Do you ever wish you were a twin?

Melanie and Michele Bushong are twins who believe they have double fun living on the Lebanon Valley farm.

These blue-eyed girls with sun-streaked brown hair not only look alike but also share the same interests.

Often their friends can't tell them apart. So, when they ask, "Which twin are you?" Melanie grins and says, "I'm Michelle." The twins think it is great fun to trick their friends.

Melanie says, "I like being a twin so we can share our clothes." But Michele admits that sometimes they fight over clothing if they both want to wear the same thing.

These twelve-year-old twins are 4-H members who are already planning for their future. They save the money they make raising rabbits, dogs and calves for college.

Presently, they have 55 Dutch Angora and French Angora rabbits. Melanie prefers taking care of the rabbits because she likes brushing their long hair.

Michelle likes taking care of her calf better than doing any other farm chore. She does a good job because her calf won the senior champion award at the Lebanon 4-H show. Melanie's calf won the junior reserve champion award; then both showed their calves at the district 4-H show. There, both received blue ribbons, master showman and master fitter awards in their separate classes. This qualifies them to compete in the PA All American Dairy Show.

The girls have five Brittany Springer Spaniels which they breed and sell. This spring, one of the dogs had 7 puppies. After the puppies are eight weeks-old the girls sell them.

Michele said sadly, "Sometimes it's hard to sell our animals." But the girls don't have time to waste being sad. They get busy taking care of all their other animals.

These busy twins live with their parents Dale and Fran Bushong and a brother Matt.

If you go to any 4-H roundups, keep your eyes open—you might think you are seeing double if you bump into the twins, Melanie and Michelle.

Everyday the twins help their parents milk 85 cows. The girls wash the cows & change the milkers in their Lebanon Valley barn.

Michelle isn't holding a stuffed rabbit! It is one of the 55 beautiful Angora rabbits they raise to sell or give to another 4-H'er.

Here are the twins with 2 of their Brittany Springer Spaniels. Twice a year the dogs have puppies. When the puppies are 8 weeks old, the girls sell them.

Do you know which twin is holding onto this award-winning calf?

where they now live. They milked until 1974. Jaye, also 67, raises corn and alfalfa on the 85 acres and raises heifers for other farmers. They have three children, two boys and a girl, none of whom are involved with the farming operation.

"My first love is the land and Holstein cows, and my second is woodworking," says Jaye, who went to night school in 1971 to learn the craft. He had heard a lot of talk about diversifying, and thought that woodworking would be "a pleasant supplement."

In 1981 he built a large Morton shed which is a combination farm shop, machinery shed and woodworking shop. All the shop machinery is on wheels, all the lights on swivels. He has built six full-sized grandmother clocks here, restored various pieces of furniture for customers, and built a mantel clock which won first place at the Franklin County Fair in 1984.

His current project is restoring an antique rowboat for a customer. "It was junk when I started with it," he related. "I have about 45 hours of labor in it." The fourteen foot long boat is at least 75 years old and seats five or six people. It is covered with fiberglass, a material he had never worked with before. "I took it on as a challenge," he said.

His favorite piece of shop equipment is the lathe. "When I want to relax, I play with the lathe," he said. He learned the technique from a craftsman at the Franklin County Fair several years ago, and can turn anything from small thimbles and bells to baby rattles on it. He needs to keep current with such fine work. "If you don't turn anything for two weeks," he explained, "then, when you go back to it, you think something's wrong with the machinery; it's that touchy."

Jaye is also a fan of old farm machinery. He has a 1968 John Deere 4020 which he cleaned and painted and now uses often in his farming operation. He also has a small antique twelve horsepower John Deere H series tractor which he plans on restoring. "It doesn't need much done to it," he said.

The farmhouse contains a blend of the talents of both spouses. The kitchen cupboards and refinished antiques are Jaye's handiwork. Daisy's paintings, for which Jaye made the frames, hang in every room. They love their home and its tree-shaded grounds and have no plans to move anywhere else. "We'd feel penned up if we moved to a house," Jaye said. "We'll just hang on here like this."

Admirers of their crafts hope they will "hang on" there a long time, pursuing their artistic talents.

Montgomery County 4-H Teens Win At Fashion Review

Creating your own clothes is fun, money-saving, and a great way to learn decision-making along with clothing construction skills. Over forty 4-H members modeled their own creations at the County 4-H Fashion Revue, one of the yearly highlights of the 4-H Clothing Program, held recently at the Peter Becker Community in Harleysville.

Five seniors, ages 14-19, and three juniors, ages 13 and under, were selected to represent Montgomery County 4-H Program at the Southeast Region 4-H Fashion Revue, July 24, at Ursinus College.

Senior representatives included Judy Park, North Wales; Rachel Benner, Lansdale; Lisa Finnin, Collegeville; Lisa Koehler, Souderton; and Clorinda O'Leary, Green Lane.

Selected juniors were Danielle Detweiler, Souderton; Samantha Candy, Hatfield; and Kristen Schickling, Hatfield.

Two of the seniors, Judy Park and Lisa Koehler, were selected to represent Southeastern PA at the State 4-H Fashion Revue, held at Penn State University earlier this month. Both scored high, with Lisa placing in the top ten of the state.

The entrants are judged on garment construction, fit, degree of construction difficulty, appropriateness of garment for the 4-H member and modeling ability. All participants receive small prizes provided by local businesses such as Harleysville National Bank, Harleysville Savings Association, Harleysville Dairy Queen, Stroehmann, Hennings Market, Continental Bank, the Souder Store, and Mellon Bank. Prizes for the winners were donated by "SEW NEWS" and Lansdale Discount House.

By participating in the series of county, regional and state revues, 4-H Clothing and textile members have a chance to turn self-consciousness into self-confidence. They learn about wardrobe selection, the importance of good posture, physical fitness, and other aspects of grooming. Sharing newly-learned knowledge and skills with other participants is also an important part of the program.

...made to last

It's difficult to tell who had the most fun – the residents or the 4-H'ers.

Unusual Guests

on the retirement home's grounds, but residents who were too ill to leave their rooms did not need to miss it. The 4-H'ers carried their animals into the rooms where residents petted and exclaimed over their unusual guests.

Resident John Krick was delighted that the children brought the fair to the home. He said that he had worked on a farm before his hospitalization and now he misses the animals. Since Krick is unable to walk, he has a motorized cart called an Amigo. Fastened to the front of his cart is a basket which Krick filled with two little piglets from the fair.

Many of the residents recalled previous years when fair time was a highlight of their lives. Since they can no longer travel to the regular town fair, they appreciated the 4-H'ers efforts to bring them some fun and laughter.

Lebanon Dairy Princess Becky Sonnen and Andrea Wampler who masqueraded as the pink cow offered free milk, cheese and crackers to residents.

The 4-H'ers visits will not be limited to this one-time celebration. Each has adopted a resident and will keep in contact by visiting, giving small gifts and making a 4-H project for them. In December, a return group visit is planned.

The 4-H leaders, Fran Bushong and Lorraine Royer, said it was difficult to tell who had the most fun, the residents or the 4-H'ers. But one thing was certain, their visit put some smiles on faces that hadn't had one for a long time.

Later, the group congregated outside for a covered dish meal with their families. Lebanon 4-H King Matt Bushong and Queen Cathy Mase were each awarded a $100 savings bond for their success in selling tickets for a previous town fair.

Lorraine Royer, 4-H director, presents a $100 savings bond to Matt Bushong who is Lebanon County's 4-H King.

Yes, that's really two piglets in John Krick's Amigo basket. Krick, who was a farm laborer before his hospitalization, was well enough to ride around the nursing home's grounds and enjoy all the animals.

This Extended Family Makes Partnership Farming Fun

BY LOU ANN GOOD

Friends warned Dennis and Karen Lehman, not to try a farming partnership. "It will never work," they said.

But Dennis and Karen did enter a farm partnership with Karen's parents, Joe and Betty Martin, and they are glad they did.

Why does this family partnership at Route 3, Manheim, work when so many other joint ventures end in broken relationships, anger and disillusionment?

The parents say, "In a partnership everyone must be willing to give and take."

"Yes," Karen agreed, "communication is the big key." She added, "That means decisions must be made together. We talk it out until we agree."

The Martin's are convinced that they could not have a better son-in-law. Still, when they first discussed the partnership, Betty said, "We realized that Dennis would have younger ideas and we must accept that."

On the other hand the Lehmans recognize that they can benefit from the wisdom that goes with the Martin's cautiousness.

The Lehmans live on the original farmstead with its 100 acres. By renting a neigboring field, the partnership farms a total of 160 acres. About eight years ago, the Martins built a home on the land.

Both families share in the farming responsibilities. Karen and her

Betty and her daughter Karen believe working together makes the time go faster and the work easier.

Extended Family

mother take turns helping their husbands milk 85 cows. During seedtime and harvest, the women milk without the men. The farming operation includes 500 hogs in a finishing unit. "It's fully automatic," Karen explained, "so we don't need to do much to the hogs."

Even though Karen is married and has three children, her brothers and sisters teasingly point out, "Karen never left home."

But Karen, who has never lived outside her rural community, commented, "I don't think I missed anything. I love living on the farm."

And so do the Lehman's children LaVonne,13; Dwight, 11; and Pam, 8.

Dwight raises 30 chickens, 15 rabbits and six calves for his 4-H projects. His older sister LaVonne has three horses. And Pam takes care of their many cats.

Betty believes that the ability to get a long so well together depends upon the way children are raised. She said, "Even before Karen married, we worked well together."

Karen and her mother still work well together. Besides milking cows, they plant garden, can and freeze over 100 quarts each of both corn and fruit and enjoy doing crafts together.

Both women usually get up at 4 a.m. to begin their daily schedule. Betty usually does the morning milking and Karen is responsible for all the bookkeeping. "And there is a lot of that on the farm," Karen said. "It's amazing how it adds up."

Her mother added, "Karen does the bookwork and I do the banking for both our families.

Neighbors and friends often refer to this mother and daughter team as the most generous, serving people they know.

This warm-hearted mother and daughter team has a reputation for always sharing produce, home-cooking, and other gifts with neighbors, friends and those in need. It is not surprising that most of their non-farming activities are service-oriented.

Betty is vice-president of her church's sewing circle for which she buys materials and organizes the program. Monthly, she helps cook for the Manheim Meals On Wheels program and she is a member of the Penryn Fire Company Women's Auxiliary.

One day each week, Karen serves as a volunteer teacher's aide at Manheim Christian Day School. She is a 4-H leader for Sewing 1 class. Both are Sunday School teachers and are active in numerous church responsibilities. Karen said in order to be an effective mother, "I like to keep a balance of my time spent between home, school, church and community."

Both try to hang around the farm while the men are busy in the fields. Betty joked, "We're go'fer girls. We go for parts because that's when the equipments breaks down. But," Betty added with the practical attitude that typifies her, "People fuss about machinery breakdowns during harvest—but that's to be expected. That's when we use it, not while it's setting in the barn."

Not only do the women run for parts, but they take turns picking the children up at their school sports activity. Grandmother especially likes when Karen does the afternoon milking so she can watch the children's school soccer games. And the children like when Grandma picks them up.

Unlike many older generation farmers who did not grow up taking vacations, the Martin's are convinced vacations are essential so "they don't suffer burnout." The Lehmans own a cabin in the northern part of the state where they often go during the summer months. The Martin's take weekends off also. At first, they tried to take turns, but that got to be a hazzle. Now, Karen said, "As long as we're here, we work, at it together. If one family takes off, the other one does the work." That method seems to work best for them since neither couple feels the other one takes advantage of them.

Betty said that the best thing about farming is "the rural living and the idea of being together."

Perhaps that is the reason for this successful three generational partnership. They enjoy togetherness and they work hard at it.

Farm Women Societies

Farm Women Society 22

Members of Farm Women Society 22 met at the home of Jane Houser to hold an auction of produce and baked good for their August meeting.

During the business session, Barbara Byler was elected vice-president, Louise Witmer - secretary and Ann Smoker - corresponding secretary. Ann Diller will assume the presidency.

PRO-SIL Silage Activator and Corn Silage: Original Formula

Increase Milk Production 3 Pounds Per Cow Per Day

Money saving facts about Pro-Sil:

- Pro-Sil is a liquid protein, mineral and molasses mix
- When added to corn silage, Pro-Sil makes a total mix ration in the silo, bunk, etc
- Pro-Sil is a non-urea mix
- Pro-Sil will preserve silage for five to seven days after removal from the silo without mold
- Feeding a 1300-lb cow all the Pro-Sil treated corn silage she can eat along with 10 lbs of hay will support 50 lbs of milk per cow per day No Grain Is Needed. To get more production add 18-percent protein, high-energy grain at the following rates

Lbs Grain	Lbs Milk Supported
5	60
10	70
15	80
20	90
25	100

Pro-Sil treated silage can also be used with haylage and other feed mixes

One ton of Pro-Sil replaces:
- the digestible protein of 2 3 tons 44% soybean meal,
- the minerals of 500 lbs of 5 1 mineral mix, and
- the extra energy of 1750 lbs of shell corn

Yet Pro-Sil costs only 50 cents per cow per day, or $300 per ton

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Steer Brings Record Price At Huntingdon Fair

BETSY A. YODER
Huntingdon Co. Correspondent

Huntingdon — Junior livestock exhibitors ended a busy and successful week at the Huntingdon County Fair with the annual sale held Friday, August 21.

Mark Glick accepted bids from a large crowd on market hogs, lambs, steers, wether goats and a new feature this year - started calves.

Although it was the smallest steer show in years the grand champion steer garnered a record price. John Espy, Tyrone, owner of the 1,250 pound Charlais received $4.10 per pound from Miller's Diner owned by Paul and Delores Knepp. The Knepp's have been excellent supporters of the junior show for a number of years. They bought last year's champion also $4.10 is a new record price for steers at the fair.

Scott Whittaker's reserve grand champion was a 1180 pound crossbred steer. Mactown Mini-Mart paid $3.15 for Scott's steer. This is also a record price for the reserve champion.

The sale's 31 steers averaged 98 cents per pound with the champions included. Last year 45 steers averaged 76 cents per pound.

Although not a record a very good price was paid for the good champion lamb. Eric Hayes' 85 pound champ sold for $7.25 per pound to Shaw Packing of Newry. They went on and bought many other lambs also.

McDonald's, another avid supporter of the junior sale bought Brandy Horning's 100 pound reserve grand champion for $5.00 per pound. Last year McDonalds had been the grand champion purchaser.

The average of the lamb sale with 48 lambs and three resales was $1.07 with grand champion included.

In the swine division, Carol Shultz of James Creek had garnered the grand champion ribbon earlier in the week. Shaw Packing did some champion bidding and received Carol's 245 pound hog for $4.80 per pound.

Shaw Packing also bought the reserve grand champion. Jenny Speck, Hesston received $3.00 for her 225 pound pig.

Fifty four pigs were sold for an average of 89 cents per pound.

Tim Symers, Alexandria was the exhibitor of the grand champion wether goat. Tri-County Packing bought the 95 pounder for $1.50 per pound.

Unitas National Bank bought Ed Sollers' reserve champion for 80 cents per pound.

Charles States representing Unitas National Bank bought Rhonda Ford's grand champion started calf.

Four goats and one resale were sold for an average of 83 cents per pound.

A new project this year received good reviews and will be a continued project. Started calves were shown by a number of members with Rhonda Ford, James Creek, exhibiting the grand champion. Unitas National Bank bought the 345 pound calf for .95 cents per pound.

Lemin Farms bought James Kling's reserve champion for 90 cents per pound. It weighed 330 pounds.

Ten calves with one resale sold for an average of 82 cents per pound.

Senator Samuel E. Hayes and Dr. Lamartine Hood, dean of the college of Ag at Penn State were on hand for the day's activities. Both complimented the youngsters on their involvement in agriculture.

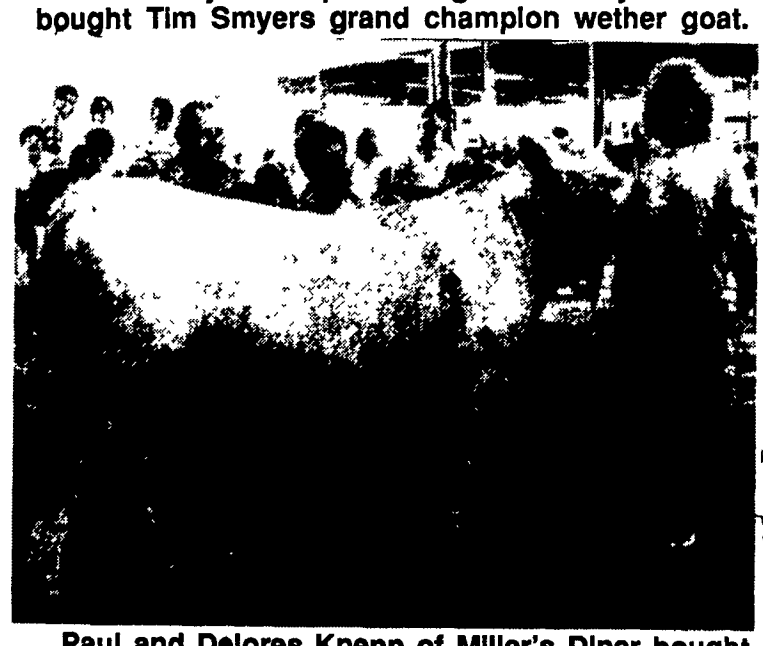
Butch Weyandt representing Tri County Packers bought Tim Smyers grand champion wether goat.



Paul and Delores Knepp of Miller's Diner bought John Espy's grand champion steer. John's sister Janie is pictured.

James Snowberger had the reserve champion lamb. The 118 pound lamb was bought by Ed's Riverside for $2.90 per pound. James also won the junior showmanship title.

A Brand New Spreader with a Tradition of Quality

* ECONOMICAL
  The SMC1754 is a lower priced spreader with more to offer than other spreaders in its class.
* MORE CAPACITY
  170 cubic feet. You can haul 10 cu. ft. more than some other spreaders in this class
* 50 FT. SPREAD WIDTH
  Get more done faster than spreaders offering only a 40 ft pattern.
* BIGGER TIRES
  The four 12.5L x 15 8 ply flotation tires have a total rated capacity of 13,840 lbs.
* FLOATING TANDEM SUSPENSION
  The floating tandem suspension provides better weight distribution and terrain adjustment than a spring and shackle suspension.
* STAINLESS STEEL
  Heavy gauge stainless steel is used in all critical corrosion areas to minimize maintenance costs.
* GEARBOX FAN DRIVE
  The 24" distributor fan is powered through a rugged gearbox driven with the standard 540 rpm tractor pto. We've avoided pulleys and belts to drive the fan so you have fewer maintenance problems.
* CHAIN & SPROCKET DRIVE
  Using stainless steel roller chains and long-wearing sprockets
* DUAL RANGE SPROCKETS
  Apply 85 to 305 lbs. per acre in low range, or 175 to 640 lbs. per acre in high range (based on 60 lb. material).
* 7" WIDE APRON of 304 stainless steel.
* FEWER MOVING PARTS
  Maintenance costs will be lower because the SMC 1754 has fewer moving parts than comparable spreaders.
* TESTED & TESTED AGAIN
  Months were spent calibrating the spread pattern and testing the design before the Simonsen name went on it.
* AND MORE
  Other standard features include equalizer chains, rope trip actuation of the press wheel drive system, all welded construction, a weight supporting vee over the apron, and Simonsen service.
* OPTIONS
  All stainless steel hopper construction, dual 540/1000 rpm pto drive, ground drive on the distributor fan, a nylon tarp and special paint colors.

Seeing Eye Puppy Club

On June 26th, 27th, and 28th, four members and dogs of the Franklin Co. Seeing Eye Puppy Club attended a puppy camp held at French Creek State Park near Lancaster. There were 60 pups and host families present and they were treated to training tips by professional handlers, a Veterinarian Clinic, plus games and other activities.

July 8th, Chris Richards, Kelly Boyd, Rhonda Garling, and Dan LaBonte competed in a Puppy Bowl at the Library for the Blind in Trenton, New Jersey. There were eleven teams present and the questions were asked by the staff of The Seeing Eye. This was the first year Franklin Co. had a team entered and they placed third against stiff competition.

The next outings with the puppies will be a visit to the Stroudsburg railroad on July 30th and a demonstration at the Chambersburg Mall on Aug. 15th from 11:00 A.M. to 12:00 noon by invitation of the Chambersburg Kennel Club.

Anyone interested in more information please call Donna Boyd at 294-9192.

BY VIRGIL E. CROWLEY
Extension Agricultural Economist

Many farmers take what records they have to their tax preparer or their accountant so their income tax returns can be prepared and filed. If they prepare their own tax returns they use the records for that purpose and then all too often, regardless of who prepared the tax returns, the farm records are filed away. "Filed away" often means they are put in some obscure place, and never looked at again unless the farm business is audited.

This is unfortunate because records have many uses and while they are essential for filing tax returns that should not be their only use, indeed it should not be the most important use.

The first and most important function of farm records should be to provide data for the farm operator to use in making management decisions. It is very difficult for a farmer to make good management decisions without accurate information about the past performance of the farm business. Good records will provide the information needed for nearly all farm management decisions.

You will note that I used the term "good records." This is because farm management decisions must be based on both financial and production information. For example suppose the financial data for a farmer's corn enterprise showed that the variable cost of corn for 1986 was $2 per bushel. If this is the only information that the farmer has it really doesn't give enough information for the farmer to make a good decision.

Sure it tells the farmer that he or she lost money on corn in 1986 and that it could have been purchased for less than it cost to grow it, however, it doesn't tell the farmer why it cost $2 per bushel to grow corn. The farmer needs additional information: when was the corn planted, what variety was used, what and how much fertilizer was used per acre, had the soil been tested, how much rainfall was received and when, what was the yield potential of the corn fields, what herbicides were used and were they effective, were temperatures normal or excessively hot or cold, and was the crop affected by disease or insects. These are examples or information that tells the farmer why the per bushel variable costs for corn were $2.

We have indicated two important uses for farm records, additional uses of farm records include the following: obtaining credit, planning and budgeting, resolving legal issues that affect the farm business, and guide to determining farm policy alternatives.

Not many farm businesses are able to operate without ever having to use borrowed money. Thus credit is very important for most farm operations. Farm records are important to the lender for several reasons.

First and perhaps most important, records provide the data necessary to prepare a balance sheet, or what many of us call a net worth statement. This document lists all of the assets of the farm business and the claims that other people have against those assets -- the liabilities of the business. The lender can use the balance sheet to determine how much of the farm's assets are available to provide collateral (protection) for the loan the farmer is seeking. The balance sheet not only tells the lender how much protection is available for the loan, a series of balance sheets over a period of time also helps the lender determine the management ability of the farmer.

While the balance sheet is a key document that most lenders demand, additional information that many demand is the income and cash flow of the farm business. The income statement tells the lender if the farm generates enough income to pay family living costs and service debt. A cash flow statement tells the lender when the farm business would have cash available to make payments on a loan.

While we have emphasized the importance of records to the lender we need to recognize that these records are equally important to the farmer. They are the principal source of information required to manage the farm's finances.

For example the cash flow statement not only tells the farmer when cash is available for debt payment, it also tells him or her what periods cash will not be available for paying bills. The balance sheet essentially tells the farmer how strong his or her financial position is. The larger the farmer's equity (that is the portion of the business the farmer owns) the better he or she is able to withstand disaster such as a crop failure, severe livestock losses, etc.

Planning and budgeting are important to the long run survival of the farm business. While budgeting is essential for long-range planning it is also a tool that can be effectively used to evaluate annual adjustments in the farm business. There are several different types of budgets and good records are a necessity for all of them.

One of the important things about budgeting is that it gives the farmer an approximation of how changes in the farm business will affect net income before actually investing money in land, buildings, and equipment. Planning is essentially the road map the farm operator develops as a guide to the goals that have been established and the budgets establish the boundaries for the map.

Usually people can readily see how records are essential to the things we have already discussed such as filing tax returns and borrowing money. However, they often fail to recognize the importance of records in legal matters. Yet, some of the most bitterly contested legal battles emerge as the result of the breakup of a partnership. Regardless of the reasons for dissolving the partnership the dispute usually arises concerning the distribution of assets. A good set of records established at the beginning and maintained during the partnership would essentially settle any questions that might arise concerning distribution of the assets.

Records also provide a record of the value of farm business assets that might be destroyed or lost in a disaster such as flood or fire. They would be very important in the event that a question of amounts and value arose that resulted in legal action. Also good records would provide information concerning the use of herbicides and insecticides. Chemicals used improperly for either of these purposes could result in legal action from surrounding property owners.

Therefore records are important to document what materials were used, how much was used, when they were used and what the weather conditions were when they were applied.

Finally records are a source of information that is often sought by the USDA and people studying farm policy and how certain policies might impact farm production and farm prices. While farm policy never pleases all farmers and is often criticized by many, there is a strong possibility that policy may be based on faulty or inadequate information. Many farmers don't have sufficiently detailed records for policy decisions.

Clearly records are important for many purposes other than filing tax returns and they also provide the information necessary for tax management. Records supply the farm operator with the information needed to plan and manage the farm to reach family goals. They help prevent bitter arguments within partnerships and they provide the basis for obtaining and using credit to improve the net returns of the farm operation. Finally, they can provide information that will help policy makers develop a sound and equitable farm policy.

In the future remember that your records can be used for many purposes other than filing tax returns. They are the basic guide to a more prosperous farm operation.

IF YOU WANT MORE FROM YOUR CROP...CASE INTERNATIONAL IS THE ANSWER

Axial-Flow has always been a clean, simple, efficient system. Now, with the 1600's increased threshing and separating area, it does an even more complete job.

The Axial-Flow system threshes grain several times (not just once) as it moves rearward, spiraling gently around and around the single rotor. Instead of a troublesome system of straw walkers, Axial-Flow uses simple separating grates and the power of centrifugal force.

Threshing and separating are accomplished in one highly efficient operation within the rotor and cage. You'll save a lot of grain that conventional combines miss. And it'll be cleaner grain because Axial-Flow takes the time to be gentle and thorough.

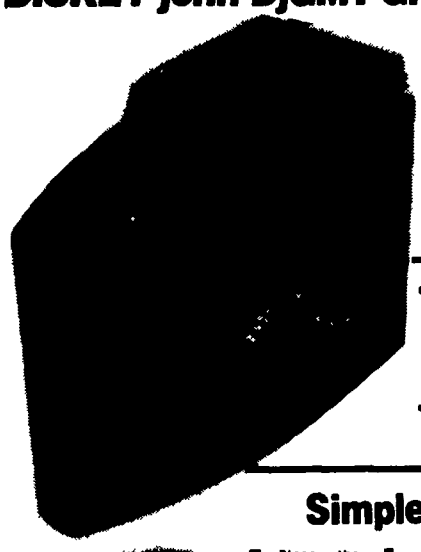
DICKEY-john DjGMT Grain Moisture Tester



The DICKEY john Grain Moisture Tester measures moisture content automatically You don t have to preweigh the sample There are no meters to read no dials to set and no thermometers to lose As soon as you pour in the grain sample the testing sequence begins A digital readout is displayed when the proper weight of the sample has entered the test chamber The readout is corrected for temperature at the touch of a pressure sensitive switch Models are available with direct readouts for corn soybeans or wheat and adhesive conversion charts are provided for other grains

- GRAIN MODEL List...$259
  CASH...$185
- FORAGE MODEL
  CASH $294.50

Simple, four-step operation

1 Place the tester on a steady, level surface Then, lift the protective cover up and slide it down out of the way

2 Use the sample cup to pour grain into the testing cell Pour slowly and steadily, taking about eight to ten seconds to empty the sample cup A readout will appear automatically.

3 Wait at least fifteen seconds Then, press the temperature compensation switch for a direct readout of the moisture content of the grain listed on that switch Refer to the appropriate chart for other grains

4 Empty the tester by turning it over (If you should forget to empty the test cell, the tester will shut itself off automatically after two minutes.)

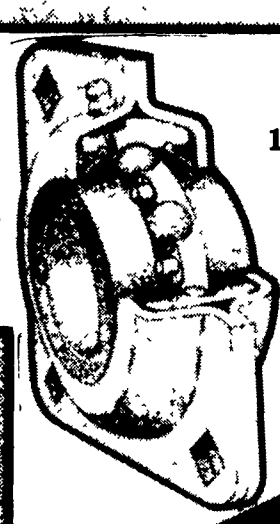
...LLAGE INNOVATORS...
...ED THE ROCKFLEX DISC
...NG PLEASURE TO FARMERS

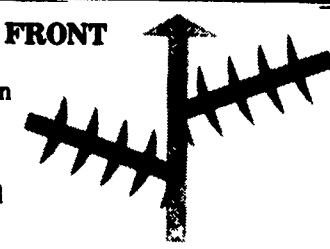
ALL KRAUSE DISCS SOLD BY HOOBERS HAVE THE 8 FEATURES SHOWN AT RIGHT

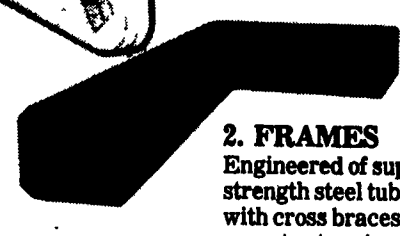
1...
2...Excellent penetration in tough conditions.
3...
4...



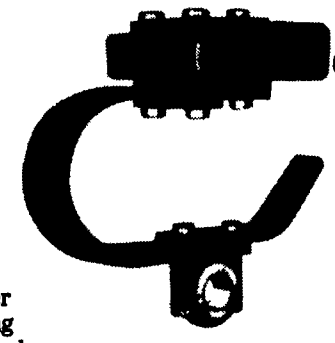
1. "SUPERSEAL" BEARINGS
Engineered to assure positive greasing directly into the cartridge. The triple lip seals keep grease in, dirt and moisture out.

5. OVERLAPPING FRONT DISC GANGS
A unique Krause design for smoother, more uniform field finish. It eliminates the center strip of untilled ground left by conventional tandem discs.





2. FRAMES
Engineered of super strength steel tubing with cross braces and gussets at major stress points.

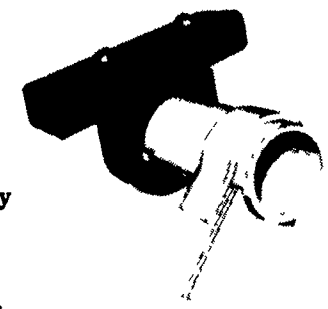


6. "ROCKFLEX" BEARING ARMS
Krause invented the "Rock-Flex" arm in 1965. This unique C-shaped arm flexes over obstacles. It helps protect disc blades and spools from breakage. "SuperSeal" bearing is completely encased in rubber to absorb shock.

3. WHEEL HUBS
Krause Made - Precision machined and regreasable. Every hub passes rigid inspection to assure proper tolerances.

7. WING HINGES
Krause uses big 1¾" diameter bolts on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty) with over 10" of wear surface area.

4. TIE RODS AND SPOOLS
Alloy steel tie rods are 1¾" in diameter on heavy duty units (1½" on medium duty) - (30% to 70% stronger than many other brands.) There's a nut on both ends for easy servicing.
Krause spools are ductile iron, and weigh 20-to 30-lbs. each.



8. ROCKER SHAFTS
A full 6" in diameter with big steel tube wheel arms for maximum carrying capacity. Compare ours to other makes!

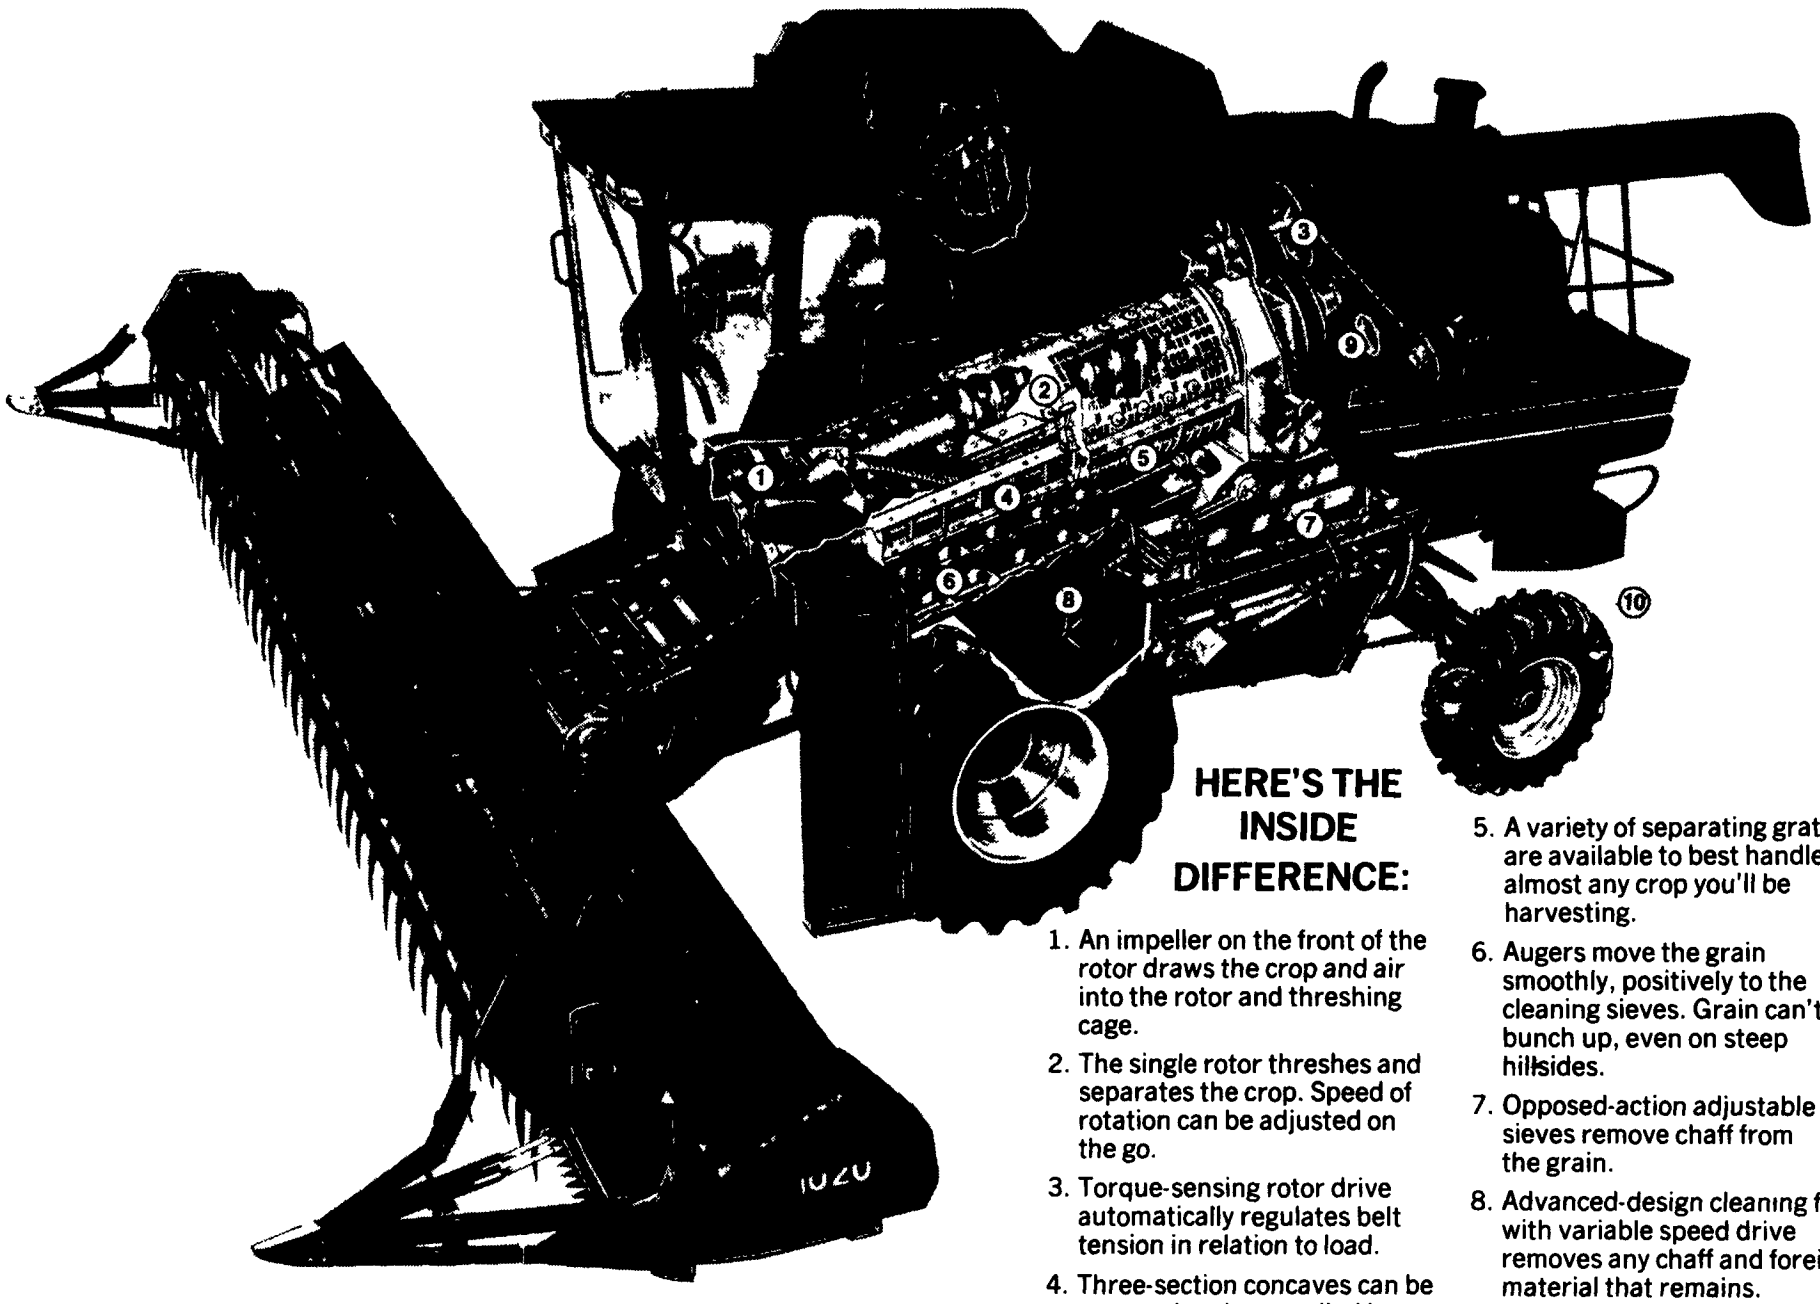
Case IH Axial-Flow Combine

DIFFERENT and BETTER from the inside out



HERE'S THE INSIDE DIFFERENCE:

1. An impeller on the front of the rotor draws the crop and air into the rotor and threshing cage.
2. The single rotor threshes and separates the crop. Speed of rotation can be adjusted on the go.
3. Torque-sensing rotor drive automatically regulates belt tension in relation to load.
4. Three-section concaves can be removed and reinstalled by one man in less than 30 minutes. Small-wire and large-wire concaves are available to match different crops. Clearance is easily adjusted with a ratchet handle.
5. A variety of separating grates are available to best handle almost any crop you'll be harvesting.
6. Augers move the grain smoothly, positively to the cleaning sieves. Grain can't bunch up, even on steep hillsides.
7. Opposed-action adjustable sieves remove chaff from the grain.
8. Advanced-design cleaning fan with variable speed drive removes any chaff and foreign material that remains.
9. Positive discharge beater propels straw rearward to the straw spreaders. (Straw chopper is optional.)
10. Wide spread twin-rotor straw spreaders distribute discharge material uniformly and can be removed in seconds for windrowing material.

Why Axial-Flow is superior. On conventional combines, the grain passes between the cylinder and concave only once. Consequently, the threshing action is severe. But with Axial-Flow, grain is threshed several times — repeatedly, but gently — as it spirals around the single, large diameter rotor and passes through the threshing cage. Multiple threshing plus gentle threshing results in less cracked grain, less dockage at the elevator and top price for every bushel.

Centrifugal force replaces straw walkers. Axial-Flow eliminates the need for straw walkers — a substantial source of grain loss with conventional combines. Consequently, the more grain you grow, the more grain you'll save with the more efficient Axial-Flow system.

1900 Forage Harvester

With 4-Row Head!

Just Arrived!

READY For THE FIELD

Durability and high capacity

The Model 1900 self-propelled forage harvester is built for high-capacity chopping. The hungry 181-square-inch throat opening swallows a lot of material fast. And a 270-hp diesel engine powers the massive, 24-inch-diameter cutterhead. That's chopping power. Besides being powerful, the 1900 is rugged. Many of the parts used on the "1900" are the same as those used on our largest chopper—the Model 2100. So extra durability and longer life are built in. Stop in and let us show you the other features that make the Model 1900 a Whopper Chopper.

790 & 900 Forage Harvesters Also In Stock!

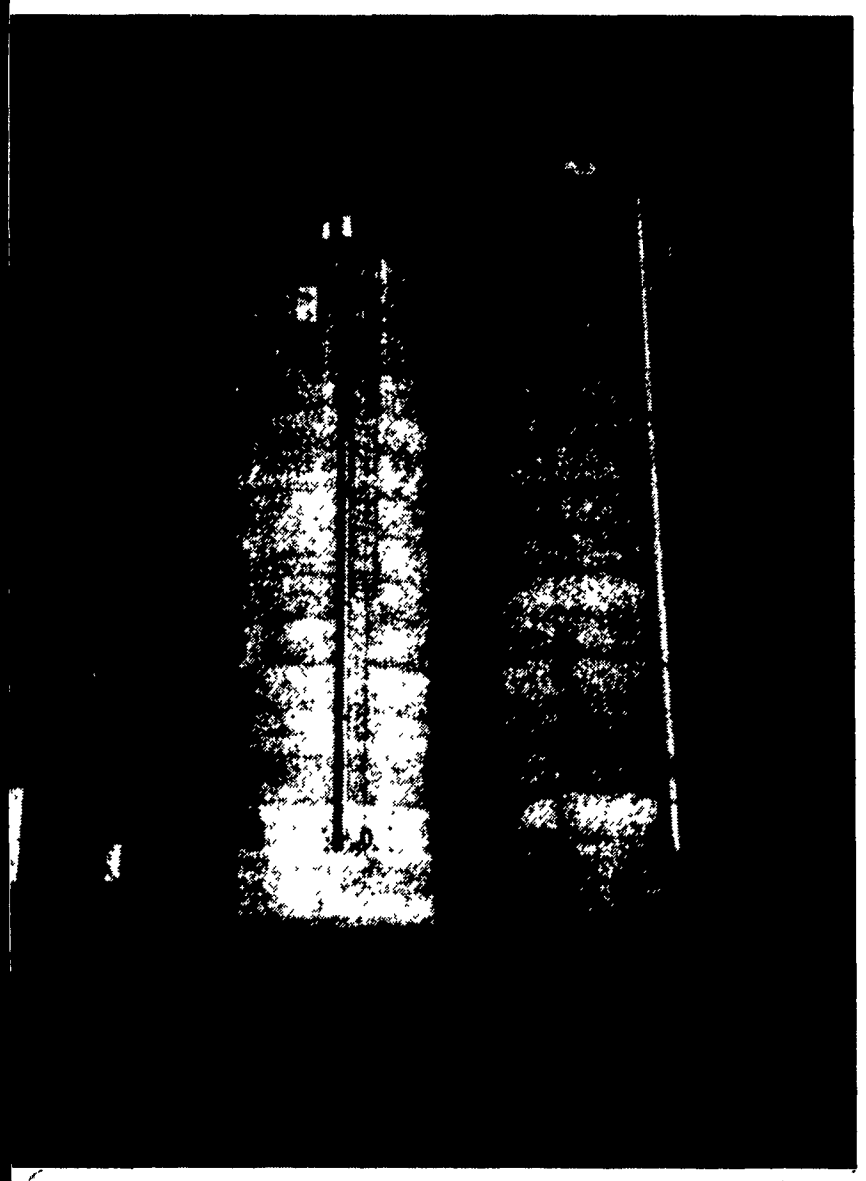
Solid Ways To Improve Your Farm

Consider The Many Advantages Of Concrete



You still have time to get your Sollenberger Silo for high moisture corn storage this fall. The summer of 1987 will be remembered for the many hot, dry days. These high temperatures damaged a lot of stored corn in structures that have a thin wall and do not reflect heat. Avoid this heat damage with a poured concrete silo from Sollenberger Silos Corp.

* The Laidig 43 bottom unloader handles high moisture ear corn and shelled corn.

* The Laidig 98 or 198 will do a good job with grains or forage at 55-60% moisture. SAVE YOUR VALUABLE LEAVES.

You Will Appreciate The Quality Of A Sollenberger Silo For Many Years To Come.

BROWN'S 40 HOG SUPPLEMENT + ►YOUR GRAIN◄ + BROWN'S 36 HI E SWINE SUPPLEMENT

THESE HOG PRODUCERS KNOW BROWN'S SUPPLEMENTS WORK

Leon Zimmerman Farmstead
Farrow To Finish On Brown's Feeds

Leon raises 50 sows and almost all their shoats. He runs a three way cross using Duroc, York, and Spotted hogs. He switched from a national brand to Brown's Feeds a little over a year ago because he liked the price. Today he is still with Brown's because he likes the feed performance and the service that Rich Graff, his Brown's sales representative, provides. Leon markets his hogs at 240-250 lbs. at about 6 months after farrowing through a local auction. Buyers like his large meaty hogs which often top the market. Generally, he farrows an average of 10 pigs per sow and weans between 9 and 9.3. Birth weights are good at about 4 lbs. per pig for sows and around 3 lbs. from gilts. He uses his own shelled and/or ear corn plus Brown's 40 Hog Concentrate in his gestation, lactation, grower and finisher group. Leon likes the economics of marketing his corn through his hogs and the way Brown's 40 Hog Concentrate supplements his hogs needs for rapid economical growth and reproduction.

Elton Muth Farm
Farrow To Finish On Brown's

Elton "Chub" Muth's 45 sows are still a part time job, but he hopes to make it a full time business soon. Last year he sold 294 fat hogs at an average weight of 236 lbs. He moves his hogs off the farm about five months after birth using Brown's Pig Starter Crumbles through weaning and then Brown's 40 Hog Concentrate to market. Chub particularly likes Brown's Lac Pac and Gest Pac which are designed to compliment Brown's Hog Supplements when mixed in lactation and gestation rations. He normally weans over ten pigs per sow, but recently weaned 137 pigs out of 157 farrowed from ten sows. Chub likes the economics of the mixes he makes using Brown's 40 Hog Supplement, and is excited about the performance he sees in his gilts, sows, and market hogs.

Randy Hoffman Farm
Farrow To Forty-Five

Pictured with Randy (left) is Carl Reist (right) Brown's Sales Representative

Randy has been using Brown's Hog Feeds for 1½ years after switching from a national brand. His hogs are mostly Yorks and Liskey Large Whites with a few Hamps. Currently he has sixty-five sows and gilts and has expansion to ninety in his future. He markets his hogs at 45 lbs. to a local finishing house. Sows and gilts are on a mix of shelled corn and Brown's 36 Hi E Swine Supplement. This supplement contains 8% high quality fat. Randy feels the high fat supplement helps his sows milk better, hold their weight longer and breed back faster, even in hot weather. Weaning and breeding have never been a problem since he started using 36 Hi E Swine Supplement and he figures he saves $2 to $3/cwt over the supplement he previously used, and is impressed by how consistant the feed is from week to week. In addition, he appreciates the regular service calls that Carl Reist, his Brown's sales representative, makes and the friendly service that Brown's truck drivers provide.

Cattlemen At Field Day Discuss How To Cut Costs

BY J. EVAN REIFF

Cattlemen were told to avoid holding fat cattle and to keep their feedlots filled as risk management measures Saturday by a key-note speaker at the Pa Cattlemen's Field Day.

Glenn Parris, West Berne, NY, said two costly mistakes cattlemen make are waiting for the fat cattle market to go up and not keeping their feedlots full year around.

"Don't just buy feeders when the silos are full and sell in the spring when they are empty," Paris explained. "Everybody does it and then they try to play the market."

By feeding by-products and damaged corn, Paris is able to keep cattle year around and control feed costs. He also stressed the need for low overhead costs and maintaining several lines of credit to ease cash flow problems.

Paris, who finishes 3400 cattle annually, spoke to a group of about 150 cattlemen, packers, and buyers at the Greystone Manor Farm, Lancaster. The field day was sponsored by the Penn State Extension Service, the Pa. Cattlemen's Association, and the Pa Beef Council.

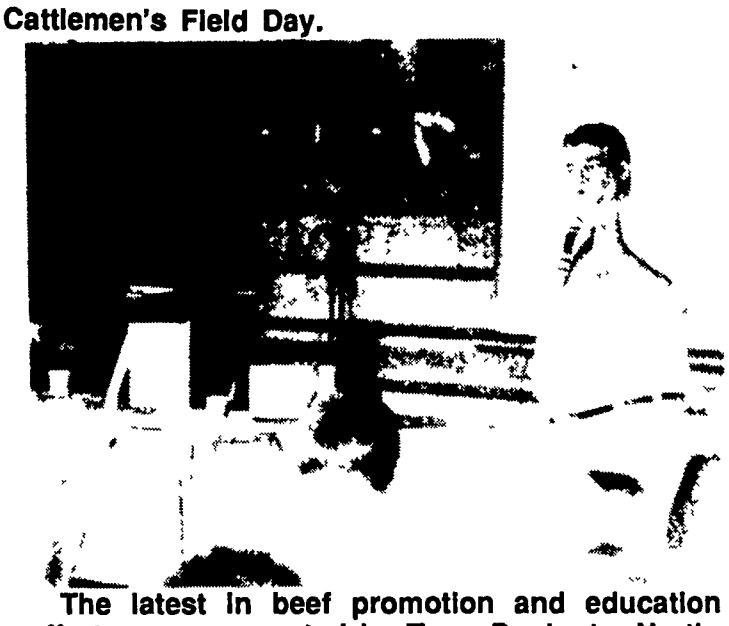
Terry Dockerty, Northeast Beef and Veal Merchandiser, informed participants of how their beef check-off dollars were being spent. According to Dockerty, the National Livestock and Meat Board's goal is to use check-off funds for projects that will increase the demand for beef.

The beef promotional ads on radio, TV, and in the print media target people who are concerned about their health and live active lifestyles, Dockerty said. Though it is too early to tell how successful the program is, he noted that studies show consumer attitudes towards beef are changing and retail sales are up over last year.

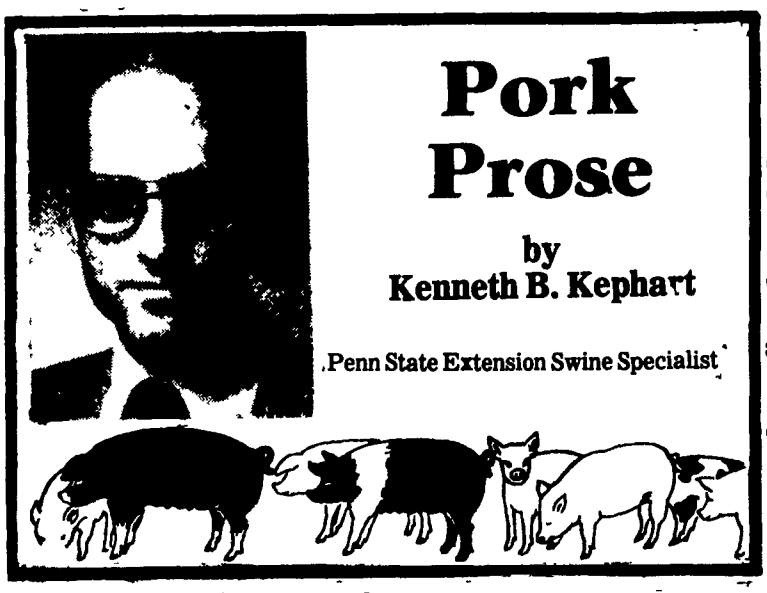
The Meat Board has also appropriated funds for research in beef nutrition and new beef products. The research results will be made available to consumers to help inform them that beef can be a healthy and an inexpensive protein source, Dockerty said.

The field day program included exhibits and demonstrations on idea feeder cattle types, carcass yields and cost of gain. Packers, producers and buyers took part in a panel discussion in which cattlemen were encouraged to not overfeed cattle, keep a low over-head, and control their cattle's cost of gain.

Dr. Bill Henning, Penn State meat specialist, shows how a beef carcasses yield grade is found at the Pa Cattlemen's Field Day.



The latest in beef promotion and education efforts were presented by Terry Dockerty, Northeast Beef and Veal Merchandiser.



Alternative Feed Grains Most of the hogs in this country fimixture of some kind in the feeder. The combination of corn and soybean meal is both practical and economical. But every now and then hog producers have an opportunity to buy or raise an "odd" feed grain -- like millet or lupins. Here are a few tips on hog performance and feed formulation if you're planning to use an off-the-wall feedstuff.

Approximate values are given for each feedstuff based on corn at $2.00/bu and 48% soybean meal at $220 per ton plus any expected changes in performance.

A cross between wheat and rye, has been around for at least 100 years, but it has never really caught on. However, a recent variety -- Beagle '82, shows good promise for swine feeds. It contains about 12% protein and .40% lysine. (Corn has about 9% protein and .24% lysine). So you can use triticale in place of all the corn and about 80 pounds of soybean meal in a 1-ton ration. Approximate value of tritcale: $.039/pound.

Insect growth can be a problem in storage, and feeders should be checked often -- triticale diets can gum up the feeder throats. As a feed grain, Beagle '82 looks great, but this variety is not adapted to warmer climates. I expect some cool season varieties to be released soon from Canada.

A legume normally used to produce beans for human consumption has not been used much in.

The older varieties contain toxic alkaloids and require heat treatment before feeding. But newer "sweet" lupin varieties are much lower in alkaloids. Sweet lupins contain about 35% protein and about 2.0% lysine. Up to 200 pounds can be added to the ration, saving 90 pounds of corn and 110 pounds of soybean meal. Approximate value of lupins: $.07/pound.

Lupins are less palatable, and contain high levels of fiber and manganese. These factors will reduce growth rate 5 to 8%. Use 4 pounds of ferrous sulfate per ton to offset the high manganese levels.

Sunflower Seeds contain about 19% protein, 15% fiber, and about .59% lysine. Up to 200 pounds can be used per ton to replace 180 pounds of corn and 20 pounds of soybean meal, with little effects on performance. Approximate value of sunflower seeds: $.043/pound.

Because sunflowers contain a lot of oil, they may decrease carcass firmness. Avoid using more than 400 pounds per ton.

Are not much different in composition than rolled oats. Protein content varies from 13 to 17%. Lysine levels range from .50 to .70%. When using hulless oats, all the corn and about 80 pounds of soybean meal can be removed from the formula with no effects on performance. More soybean meal can be removed with the addition of synthetic lysine. Approximate value of hulless oats: $.039/pound.

Pearl Millet contains 15.7% protein and .35% lysine. Experiments show that performance is not affected when millet is used to replace all the corn and 50 pounds of the soybean meal in a 1-ton diet. Approximate value of pearl millet: $.038/pound.

Drought Stricken Corn contains a little more protein than corn but it should be substituted pound for pound for normal corn. Studies at the University of Kentucky compared corn from an area that yielded 125 bu/acre with two drought stressed varieties -- with yields of 12 and 19 bu respectively. Growth rate and feed.

Efficiency were improved 4 to 6 percent on the drought stricken varieties. Approximate value of drought stricken corn: $.037/pound.

Sprouted and Frost Damaged Barley seems to support normal levels of performance. Most grains that have sprouted have lower energy values. But at the University of Alberta, 2 sprouted and 3 frost damaged varieties of barley had no effect on performance when compared to an undamaged hybrid. Approximate value of sprouted or frost damaged barley: similar to undamaged barley.

Drawbacks to Sprouted Barley: Sprouted barley may also contain high levels of molds and mycotoxins, depending on conditions. Avoid feeding it to the breeding herd.

Corn Gluten Feed, a by-product of the corn processing industry, contains 21% protein, 8.5% crude fiber, and .60% lysine. It seems to be gaining popularity in the midwest, but it's not used much yet in the northeast. Studies with corn gluten feed haven't been consistent. Some studies show that up to 400 pounds of corn gluten feed can be used without affecting performance, while others show that

As little as 200 pounds can signficantly reduce growth rate and feed conversion. When using corn gluten feed, substitute up to 200 pounds for 175 pounds of corn 25 pounds of soybean meal. Approximate value of corn gluten feed: $.04/pound.

Summary

Some of the unusual feed grains can be a bargain at the right price. Before you jump, put the pencil to it, then get a second opinion. Be cautious of molds if you're buying from someone else. And if your present feed formulas contain protein supplement, don't reduce the amount of supplement. Make pound for pound substitutions with corn.

Corn Yield Contest Planned

The Northumberland County Conservation District is sponsoring its third annual yield contest for corn planted by the no-till method, according to Robert F. Pardoe, Jr., chairman of the conservation district.

The unique format of the contest gives farmers with relatively poor soils the opportunity to compete against farmers with more productive farmland.

There will be two separate categories for judging. The winner of the Highest Yield Category will be the farmer with the highest no-till corn yield regardless of soil type. The winner of the Soil Type Category will be the farmer that has achieved the highest yield in comparison with the "estimated yield" for his soil type as found in the soil survey publication for Northumberland County.

First place winners in each category will receive a $100 US Savings Bond and a plaque. Second place winners will receive plaques.

The contest is open only to no-till corn. Fields submitted must be at least five acres in size and be located in Northumberland County. Only one field per farmer may be submitted in the contest.

Yield checks will be made in October by the staff of the Northumberland County Conservation District. Yields will be estimated by hand-harvesting several small sample plots and weighing the corn that was picked. Fields entered in the National Corn Growers Contest may also be entered in the Northumberland County contest.

The deadline for entering the contest is September 15. To enter the contest, contact the Northumberland County Conservation District at 988-4224.

Doebler To Unveil New Hybrids

Three new Extra Performance single crosses and high tech fertilizer plots will highlight Doebler hybrid corn days September 6, 12 and 13 at Jersey Shore, Pa., it is announced by Ted Doebler, president of Doebler's Hybrids.

The field days will be held at the Doebler farm directly south of Pine Creek Exit of Route 220 between Williamsport and Lock Haven, he said. First tours are set for 10 a.m. A free lunch also will be served.

"Research trials indicate the production boost of our new XP hybrids will more than pay total seed costs," the veteran seed corn producer observed.

Relative maturities of the new Eastern hybrids range from 103 days to 78 days.

Three non-XP hybrids also will be unveiled at the field days, Doebler said, including a modified 75X with the lower price tag of a three-way hybrid.

In the fertilizer plots, he noted, nine popular Doebler hybrids have been used to test nitrogen rates of 0 to 300 pounds actual N. Applications were made at plowdown, 15 to 18 inch plant height and at mid-silking.

Visitors also will be able to observe performance of different seed sizes and narrowing row widths, Doebler said.

He recommended that drought-hit growers take a special look at Doebler's high pressure reel type irrigation. It was used extensively in July when the Doeblers saw only 1.5 inches of rain at Jersey Shore.

The family's new computer system also will be available for inspection.

Doebler's Hybrids was founded 53 years ago by Taylor Doebler, Sr. on 19 rented acres along Pine Creek. Corn acres in the Jersey Shore area have grown to some 2,000 today but the farm is still a family business. Son Ted heads the operation, with his sister, Mrs. Norma Camerer, executive assistant; son-in-law Willard Jones, sales manager; nephew Bill Camerer III, research director; son Taylor Doebler III, research assistant; and another son-in-law, Wes McCracken, equipment chief.

New Case IH Air Disk Drill

RACINE, WI — The new Case IH Model 8600 air disk drill provides a 30-foot seeding width, and combines the advantages of air seeding technology with seeding accuracy superior to conventional grain drills.

Designed to meet the needs of both conventional and minimum till planting operations, the Model 8600 features:

- a new seed delivery system for uniform seed emergence;
- precise depth control for optumum soil/seed contact and crop development;
- the versatility to handle many seed varieties, including wheat, barley, peas, milo, oats, rapeseed and sobyeans; and
- a hydraulic folding tool bar for easy transportability.

Accurate Seed Delivery System

A unique seed delivery system and exclusive all-metal feedcaps with a tapered metering edge that handle up to nine openers each ensure seeding accuracy without seed cracking, bridging or choking. A 115-bushel (4 cubic meter) non-pressurized hopper with a 3.83-bushel per foot capacity leads either seed or fertilizer to feed cup bank and fertilizer star wheels.

Seeds are gently metered through feed cups and fall by gravity to venturis, where they are drawn into one of the main delivery hoses. Constant air pressure continues to move the seed to an elbow designed to enhance even distribution by keeping the seed in the middle of the air column.

Seeds then move up standpipes with a dimpled design that further ensures even distribution by keeping seeds in the middle of the pipeline without lodging along the sides. A manifold evenly divides seed flow and funnels it through the delivery hose into double-disk furrow openers.

An air drill monitor system assures constant seed flow monitoring, including fan speed, hopper levels, manifold blockages and automatic system self-test at each start up.

An optional monitor constantly checks all openers and immediately detects blockage in individual seed tubes.

These features enable the Model 8600 to seed accurately at field speeds of up to 8 miles (12.9 kilometers) per hour. Furthermore, this accuracy is maintained on slopes up to 15 degrees, and up to 29 degrees for wheat seeding.

Precise Seed Placement

Heavy duty double-disk opener units on the Model 8600 are designed for precise depth control and optimum soil/seed contact with parallel linkages that continually keep the disks' cutting edges at the proper angle.

Adjustable down pressure springs provide up to 90 pounds (41 kilograms) of down pressure per opener, assuring soil penetration under a wide range of conditions. The 3x13 inch (76x330 mil-

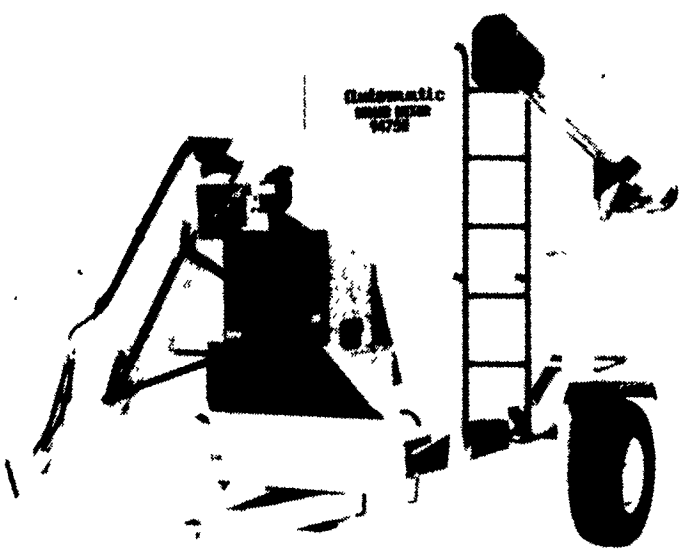
Case IH now offers a new Model 8600 air disk drill, combining the advantages of air seeding technology with seeding accuracy superior to conventional grain drills. Features include a new seed delivery system, precise depth control and the versatility to handle many varieties of seed.



Ryder Supply Promotes Mixer

The Automatic 9475 Roller Mixer is the ideal combination for hogs according to Ryder Supply. The Roller Mill produces uniform, fine particle feed without reducing grain to flour. There's no flour or dust to cause respiratory problems and the grain is ideal for the hog's digestive system. The mill has 450-900 bu./hr. capacity (shelled corn) and teams with proven-design round mixer with 105 bu. tank. Swing-a-way 8-inch auger feeder with 36 in. hopper makes it easy to load. Eight-inch discharge auger with 9-foot reach unloads to left, right or rear with 324 degree horizontal swing and 360 degree vertical operation.

Deutz Air-Cooled Diesel Engines

Deutz diesel engines cooled by a direct air flow offer the maximum in fuel economy, low maintenance and compactness, says J.R. "Russ" Green, tractor marketing manager.

State-of-the-art Deutz air-cooled diesel engines match the power output of larger, leff fuel-efficient liquid-cooled engines while maintaining good horsepower-to-weight ratio. Unit cylinder design permits the quick removal and replacement of individual cylinders, Green says. Most parts are completely interchangeable within engine series.

Deutz air-cooled engines are an exclusive feature of Deutz-Allis tractors and combines. The new Deutz-Allis tractor lines equipped with air-cooled engines include the 6200 series, ranging from 43 to 73 PTO hp., and the 7100 Series, from 85 to 145 PTO hp. R-Series rotary Gleaner combines, now ranging from the 190-hp. R50 to the 270-hp. R70, also rely on air-cooled diesel engines.

Direct air cooling eliminates a major source of equipment breakdown: liquid cooling hardware such as radiators, water pumps and hoses. Cooling system maintenance usually consists of little more than checking fan belt tension, Green says.

In addition to exceptional reliability, air-cooled diesel engines are characterized by long service life. This is because air-cooled engines reach operating temperature much faster than liquid-cooled engines. Most engine wear occurs during startup, so shortening this critical period extends engine life.

Air-cooled engines typically use 20 percent less diesel fuel than liquid-cooled engines. Direct fuel injection ensures smooth, quiet operation and improves fuel efficiency as well. Aerodynamic intake ports in Deutz engines impart a swirling motion to incoming air, so it mixes thoroughly with fuel in the combustion chamber. Fuel is injected through four-hole nozzles to promote mixing and complete combustion.

Before shipping, every Deutz engine is rigorously tested under extreme conditions, Green adds. This means there's always ample reserves of power for actual field use.

Klockner-Humboldt-Deutz, parent company of Deutz-Allis, manufactures more than 200,000 air-cooled diesel engines each year, ranging from 4 to 525 horsepower. Deutz engines power trenching machines, industrial forklift trucks, soil compaction equipment, portable air compressors, water pumps and other machinery used in the marine, mining, transportation, manufacturing and construction industries, Green says. A special transporter built to carry the U.S. space shuttle from its maintenance and testing facility to the launch pad at Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif., is driven by a Deutz V-12 engine.

limeter) adjustable depth/press wheels control seeding depth and firm the soil over the seed for fast, uniform plant emergence.

Additionally, the toolbar frame is divided into three 10-foot (3.1 meter) sections. The frame wing sections flex in excess of 20 degrees above or 10 degress below horizontal to assure proper seed placement on uneven terrain.

Convenience Features

Other time and labor saving features designed into the Model 8600 air disk drill include:

- easy transportability as the unit folds hydraulically to a transport width of 14 feet 1 inch (4.3 meters), narrow enough for most farm gates and county road bridges;
- a seed delivery system with fewer parts than competitive systems for lower maintenance costs and reduced downtime potential;
- a wide, sturdy catwalk around the hopper for quick and easy filling;
- easy-open slide panels for seed and drop bottoms for fertilizer to simplify cleanout;
- single levers for adjusting fertilizer and grain settings;
- a large hopper lid that swings open for easy seed and fertilizer filling with commonly used auger equipment; and
- an easy-to-adjust "flip-flop" lid inside the hopper to load seed and fertilizer without spillage or intermixing.

Headquartered in Racine, Wisconsin, Case IH is a worldwide manufacturer and marketer of Case IH agricultural and Case construction equipment. Case IH is an affiliate of Tenneco Inc.

Headquartered in Houston, Texas, Tenneco Inc. is a diversified company with major business interests in oil, natural gas pipelines, agricultural and construction equipment, shipbuilding, automotive parts, chemicals, packaging, agriculture, land management and minerals.

Floyd Imes Honored By PA Seedsmen's Association

For thirty-five years, Floyd Imes has been traveling extensively throughout the eastern states purchasing and distributing small grains and soybeans.

But his travels will soon come to a stop. On October 1, Imes is retiring as seed specialist from Agway of Syracuse, New York.

To show appreciation for Imes dedication, The PA Seedsmen's Association honored Imes on August 21 with a plaque.

Imes has been active in the association since its conception in 1956 and has served three terms as president.The association gives legislative purpose, discusses the seed situation, and seedsmen's mutual needs with reference to seed laws, seed quality and supplies.

Other segments of agriculture have also benefitted from Imes's involvement by his being part of the PA Grassland Council, a charter member of PA Master Corn Growers Association and the Mid-Atlantic Soybean Association.

Imes has served as president of the PA Foundation Seed Corporation and as part of a team that makes decisions for new and improved seeds.

Floyd Imes

This Manheim resident's dedication is not limited to his career duties. He is a member of the Manheim Rotary and he said, "I have not missed a meeting in 25 years."

As Imes recounted his affiliation as a seed specialist he said, "I've had lots of fun over the years."

He does not expect the fun to stop with his retirement since he plans to travel with his wife to Australia and New Zealand to visit friends.

Manna Pro Appoints Gordon

LOS ANGELES — Manna Pro Corporation has named Ron Gordon as Specialty Feed Product Manager, it was announced by R.L. Young, President. Gordon, a Territory Manager of the company's Chamblee, Georgia Division since 1985, will take responsibility for all feed products directed to horse, pet and small animal markets.

Prior to his association with Manna Pro, Gordon served as sales specialist for equine health products for a regional horse care company, and as Manager for a local tack shop in Georgia. He is a graduate of Georgia College where he received his BA in Marketing. He will be located at Manna Pro Corporate Headquarters in Los Angeles.

President Reagan Meets FFA Leaders

WASHINGTON, D.C. — FFA leaders from across the nation were welcomed and challenged by President Reagan as he spoke with state officers, adult advisors, executive secretaries and alumni leaders at the FFA State Presidents' Conference.

As Reagan addressed the Future Farmers of America representatives, he said, "We are totally committed to a strong and vibrant American agricultural economy. I want to take this opportunity to thank you, the members of the FFA, for all you are doing to prepare young Americans for the challenge that lies ahead. If we're successful in putting our reforms in place, we're counting on you to beat the pants off the competition. And all America is confident that you will."

During their congressional luncheon, Senator Richard Lugar, who serves as Republican leader on the Senate Agriculture Committee, spoke to the group about major agricultural, trade and other governmental issues.

During the conference, which was sponsored by Chevrolet as a special project of the National FFA Foundation, Inc., the state FFA officers met with their senators, congressmen and representatives of the U.S. Departments of Agriculture and Education. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, spoke at the group's luncheon immediately preceding the White House visit.

While in the nation's capital, the students met in workshops to share concerns and discuss issues facing FFA and high school agriculture and they toured several historic sites in the Washington, D.C. area.

The FFA State Presidents' Conference was led by the six national FFA officers: Kevin Eblen, Iowa; Kevin Yost, Nebraska; Jones Loflin, North Carolina; Jayme Feary, Alabama; Dean Harder, Minnesota, and Daren Coppock, Oregon.

Red Holstein Tops Northeast Show

BY BARBARA MILLER

WHITNEYVILLE — A handsome red Holstein owned by James Slocum, Susquehanna, Pa., garnered top honors in the Northeast Pennsylvania Championship Show held at the Tioga County Fairgrounds, Whitneyville. It was the first time in the show's 14 year history that a red Holstein took home the grand champion trophy. One hundred sixty-two animals were shown.

The reserve grand champion award went to Gordon and Dorothy Wood, Mansfield, for their six-year-old entry, Gor-Wood D Creek Harriet. The Woods also won the premier breeder and premier exhibitor awards again this year.

In the Junior Show Jay Braund of Braund-Valley Farms, Troy, captured first place with his two-year-old, Braund-Valley Chairman Emma. Reserve Grand Champion in the Junior Show went to Jackie Sparling, Mansfield, for her three year old cow, Anne-How Dairyman Annette.

"She's the best cow my wife and I ever owned," said James Slocum owner of the five-year-old grand champion of the show, C Mount Haven Crystan Reta-Red. According to Slocum, at three years, eight months in 365 days she produced 26,081M, 5.7 percent fat, and 1474 pounds fat. In 1986 she was an All Pennsylvania Four Year Old, and All America Red & White Four-year-old. This year she placed second in her class at the spring show in Harrisburg, and she and her daughter placed first in the dam and daughter class at the International Red and White Show at Canandiagua, N.Y.

Reta-Red, who possesses an open pedigree, was purchased in Canada by the Slocums while yet a heifer. The Slocums milk 25 cows about half of which are red and white Holsteins on their 400 acre farm.

The Gordon and Dorothy Wood family of Mansfield have been top competitors at the Northeast Pennsylvania Championship Show for many years winning reserve grand, grand, and premier breeder exhibitor several times.

Gordon Wood acknowledged it was a strong show this year with more competitors from other areas. Their homebred entry, Gor-Wood-D Creek Harriet, who won the reserve grand champion of the show, is classified at EX 93 with her highest lactation at 31,000, according to Ron, Gordon's son. Ron added that they were pleased to have won the "best three of the show" since their cows placed first in the three-year-old, four-year-old, and aged cow categories.

Winner of the Junior Champion Female Trophy went to Lynn & Bonnie Miller, Towanda, for their homebred entry, Royal-Haven Valiant Prudence, a senior yearling heifer.

Jay Braund of Braund-Valley Farms, Troy, captured the grand champion of the Junior Show with the aforementioned two-year-old who won reserve Junior All Pennsylvania in 1986 and thus far this year, the open grand and supreme champion of the 1987 Troy Fair, plus the grand champion prizes at the Bradford County 4-H Roundup and the Northeast District 4-H Show at Harford. Emma is homebred and out of a dam classified at VG 87, and a granddam classified at EX 93. She won, Braund said, because she was tall, stylish, and possessed a "really good udder."
